Speaking of PUBLIC SAFETY

Modern street lighting is a powerful force for safety after dark, according to reports from cities throughout the nation to the National Street and Traffic Safety Lighting Bureau. For example: In Dayton, O., service and buildings director George F. Baker said, "A lighted city is a live city." Last year, when Dayton's extensive street lighting modernization program was nearly complete, traffic deaths during the hours of darkness dropped 41 per cent.

Police Chief Frank Evans of Peoria, Ill., reports, "Crime definitely is down in Peoria. There are no shadows for the criminal to hide in with the modern lighting system. There's no doubt of its effectiveness."

Total traffic accidents in six Connecticut communities after modern relighting of streets: instances of property damage fell from 263 to 163, with the cost of these accidents declined from $106,000 to $46,000.

From El Paso, Tex., Police Chief Risinger declares, "We don't need statistical evidence to show the value of street lighting on the south side. You can drive the holdup men and the assaulters off the street as soon as you light them."

Police Chief Roland R. Kelley of Fort Lauderdale, Florida, believes modern new street lighting will reduce traffic accidents to a minimum. Relighting the main traffic artery through town reduced accidents on the street more than 50 per cent!

The experience of these and many other cities, the Lighting Bureau declares, established the tremendous importance of modern street lighting for protection against night crime and traffic accidents. David Baldwin, National Safety Council spokesman, says, "Properly designed, properly installed and properly maintained street lighting will save lives, and we need much more of it than we have now."

Here's why A SECOND CAR is a NECESSITY

For getting children to school there's nothing like having a second car... especially when you have little ones at the school it get close by.

To enjoy your hobbies a second car is almost a must. With a second car, the man in the family can go fishing, hunting, golfing—and the girls can go about their activities—without leaving other members of the family stranded without transportation.

In case of an emergency a second car enables you to go wherever you most in a hurry. And it's always a comfort to know your second car is there—in case.

For grocery shopping, and all other shopping too, how can you manage without a car? A second car lets either you or her shopping to her own schedule and convenience.

So the young folks can go, too. Young people usually get the same as Mother's and Dad's. With two cars in the family, both youngsters and elders can get and go as they wish.
