Fall Now Splashing Color Across Upper Michigan

Foliage in the western upper peninsula was first touched with bright hues about mid-September. The usual pattern is for the color to travel east in the UP and then south from the Straits of Mackinac over a period of two or three weeks. At present, northern lower peninsula foliage is just ripening.

Maple, aspen and oak trees provide some of the brightest colors, these, mingled with northern evergreens, provide a rich mat of brilliance for photographers, hikers, hunters and late season picnickers.
