LETTER TO EDITOR

Letters submitted to the Editor for publication must be signed. Opinions expressed in this column are those of the writer and do not necessarily represent the policies of this newspaper.

Dear Sir:

There was a man, once, who, as the story goes, kept hitting his thumb with a hammer and wondered why it didn't stop hurting.

That reminds us of the recent complaint of a little neighbor girl. Her legs were cold, but she hated to wear leggings unless driven to it by severe weather. A friend said, "Why not wear stockings?" They did where she came from and in most other localities. Then she could look nice and keep warm too, and save the leggings for that 'severe' weather. Now, she and her friends wear long hose, and get fun sporting the latest colors, to say nothing of greater comfort.

Yes, doing the obvious thing has always been advisable, but another example to the contrary is the man who bought his first car. After he had it a few days the motor began knocking and heated up something awful. He called up a mechanic who looked it over and asked if the owner ever added any oil. The owner replied, "What? Does it have to have oil?"

On a larger scale we have the lot that used the same reasoning. It wanted business badly, and many new stores were built, and huge housing projects were added. People were attracted to this town and came in droves. When they came, though, they were obliged to drive around and around. They soon became dizzy, so went somewhere else. Why? They had to have a place to park. "Park," said the powers that be, "if we provide a place to park we'll have no topic of conversation on these long winter evenings."

Let's let people park off the street, do the obvious thing now, and keep Farmington alive!
