WILDLIFE SUPPLIES OFFER FIRST PLY $8 MILLION WORTH

Michigan wildlife provided an $8,000,000 supply of edible meat last year, according to a recent study by a Conservation Department game biologist.

Hunters and trappers harvested almost 6,000 tons of edible meat in the state during 1954, valued at $8,298,878. In addition, pelts of animals taken were worth $1,174,128.

Charles Shick, extension specialist in game management, points out that the aesthetic value of wildlife cannot be measured in terms of money.

"The evaluations used in this study 'do not give consideration to the value of the recreation and enjoyment wildlife affords to hunters, trappers, picnickers, campers, tourists, photographers, naturalists and others," Shick said.

Deer provided the bulk of the game meat supply — 4,671,000 pounds, valued at $3,503,325.

Highest pelt values were: muskrat, $388,000; mink, $356,000; raccoon, $157,000; and beaver, $135,000.

Opening Week Deer Kill Reported Up From Last Year

Michigan's deer kill during the first six days of the 1955 season appears to be up about 12 per cent from last year, at least in the northern lower peninsula.

Hunting activity, meanwhile, appears to be about the same as last year.

Conservation Department workers counted deer on cars moving down north-south highways in the northern lower peninsula and at the Straits of Mackinac. The statistical studies showed a seven per cent increase on US-27, US-23, US-10, and M-30. A 28 per cent increase from last year showed up on US-131, US-31, M-66, M-37 and M-92. Statistically, these totals leveled off to a 12 per cent increase.

A computed total of 17,684 deer were counted during the period compared to 15,772 last year. For each year, the opening period included a full week end.

At the Straits, 5311 deer came south on ferries compared to 6,394 through the first Sunday of last year. The upper peninsula picture this year was confused by a severe blizzard the second day of the season. Twenty inches of snow fell in the west end, a number of hunters were lost and a large number of hunting camps broke up and pulled out to avoid being completely snowbound. State workers are not yet sure how much the storm has affected the overall hunting picture.

As yet the Department has no figures on hunter numbers in the woods, but early season predictions of "little change from last year" appear to be holding up.

"I doubt that there are significantly more or fewer hunters in the woods this year compared to last season," Ho H. Bartlett, Department deer authority, said after an extensive trip through the northern lower peninsula. Before the season, Department officials said they expected 524,000 hunters this year compared to 530,000 last year.

NEEDED NUTRITION COMES CHEAP, SAYS HEALTH AUTHORITY

An example of low cost meal planning described by the Michigan Department of Health shows that if your grocery bill is high, you can cut it down and still stay within the bounds of good nutrition. But the department cautioned that the case history cited — food for a family of nine for $18.00 a week — is "an emergency measure, not recommended as standard."

The rack-bottom meal plan worked out by the health department to help one Michigan family provides for all nutrition requirements, except vitamin D, at a cost just under ten cents per person per meal. A typical day's menu: breakfast — oatmeal, sugar, milk, bread, margarine; dinner — beans, orange juice, milk, bread and margarine; and supper — fried eggs, applesauce, bread, margarine and milk.

"Except in extreme cases, the health department wouldn't want to recommend such a menu," said Miss Evelyn Anderson of the department's nutrition section. "Even though the food plan includes a chicken in the pot on Sunday, this hardly makes up for eating within very strict limitations day in and day out. Given a choice, you would want more variety."

"But I'm afraid many bags of groceries bought today are high on cost and low on food value," Miss Anderson said. "Some family meal plans are double or triple the price of this one, and yet fall short of good nutrition."

The low-cost meal plan, she added, "emphasizes the values in plain, inexpensive foods; it shows what can be done by careful meal planning, wise shopping, and, most of all, if you check the nutrition values in the food you buy."

B. P. W. Plans Christmas Party

The November meeting of the Farmington Business and Professional Women's Club, which held Monday, November 21, at Huck's Redford Inn.

Plans were discussed for the club's Christmas party, to be held December 12. The date was moved up a week because of the holiday season. Each member is asked to bring a gift, preferably a home made item. Persons bringing guests to the party are asked to bring a gift for the guest as well. A special program is planned and Santa is expected to pay a visit.

Guests at the last meeting included Evelyn Burke, chairman of District Two; Mae K. Burke, executive secretary of the State Federation; and Mrs. Elsie Piper of the Oakland County Office of Civil Defense in Royal Oak.

Mrs. Piper explained plans being formulated for the evacuation of the Detroit area, which would include Farmington, if an atomic bomb were dropped in the vicinity. She also told of new methods of first aid treatment and what action one should take if caught in an atom-blast in the home, car, office or school.

Many other points were mentioned which stressed the immediate need for a permanent defense organization in the Farmington area.

Success nowadays is making more money to pay the taxes you would not be paying if you had not made so much money already.
