When I was a boy at school, I saw a sight I can never forget—a man died to a cart and dragged through the streets of my native town, his back torn and bleeding from the lash. It was a shameful punishment. For many offenses? No, for one offense. Did any of the townsmen offer to divide the lashes with him? No, he who committed the offense bore the penalty all alone. It was a penalty of a changing law, for he was the last instance of its infliction.

I saw another sight I shall never forget—myself, a sinner, standing on the brink of eternal punishment in the lake of fire. For one sin? No, for many sins committed against the unchanging laws of God. I looked again, and beheld Jesus Christ, became my Substitute. He bore in His own body on the tree all punishment for my sin. He died on the cross that I might live in glory.

The law of God required a perfect righteousness, a perfect heart. The law required spotless purity, and I was defiled with sin.

I was a child of Satan, a child of wrath. "But as many as received Him (Christ) to them gave He the right to become the children of God, even to them that believe on His name." And I found in Him not only my Substitute, but the full supply of every need of my life. I long to tell of Him, my Saviour, "for there is none other name under heaven . . . whereby we must be saved."

Michigan is one state which has never been short of electric power. Sow bargain basement grass seed in April and reap wild oats all summer. Nine electric utility companies blanket the state—and their capacity to produce electricity keeps well ahead of demand.
