policy if they controlled the legislature, said Senator Edward Hutchinson (R-Fennville).

Hutchinson (R.Fennville).

MICHIGAN HAS TAKEN A Lead in protecting its citizens against natural and man-made disasters.

"We can't stop a tornado from cocurring, but we can help minimize its effect and develop means to aid its victims." said John Griffin, state civil defense director. The state organization has whipped together an Emergency Task Force, bringing together top men in state government, to go into action when disaster strikes.

It operated in both the Westerr Michigan and the latest Flint tor

Michigan and the latest First ton-andors.
Griffin and Mayor Albert E. Co-ton, of Detroit, testified at recent Congressional hearings on ways to protect or rebuild Michigan's in-dustrial might following a dissa-ter, either natural or war-caused.
Both lasked for more Federal and a "No control of the state of the state of the state of the state of the as the organizing and consive force in the system.

They received assurance that the problem is under study in Con-gress and that action may be forth-coming! this year — especially since Michigan has been one of the hardest hit states in the nation
