Good Citizens

**NENDER therefore unto Cabar are the things that are Caisers; and unto God the things that are Gaisers; and unto God the things that are God?."

These words have been almost universally misunderstood and misused in our modern world. They are quoted often as the control of th that the law of Christ upholds unch action.

The principle of separation-between church and state is an exceeding practical measure in a consideration of the control of th

what Jesus taught countries only is that all things belong to God. In the passage under consideration, Jesus certainly was not asserting that there was an authority of Caesar of of the state which is apart altogether from that of God.
