Planners Delay

They also pointed out that they purchased the property with the understanding that the corner would be residential.

Clarence Viden, Attorney, representing the Farmington Development Company, stated that the original plan on the Warner Farms Subdivision, accepted by the City Council in October of 1952, designated the corner for commercial development. He stated that he had letters from Kenneth Loomis, former Mayor and Tracy Smith, former Councilman, verifying these facts. He added that since the new expressway project has been developed this property is even less desirable for residential development and would not be acceptable by F.H.A. Viden stated that the proposed plan for a commercial center has been approved by F.H.A. John Allen, architect, presented the proposed plan for the center along with petitions bearing the signatures of 150 persons in favor of the development. Allen stated that every effort has been made to design the center in such a way as to eliminate any objections from adjacent property owners. He added that a 40 foot greenbelt would be provided along the north side of the property, that ingress and egress would be limited to Farmington Road and the Cut-Off and that farm restrictions will be imposed as to lighting, signs and general construction.

READ LABELS

Modern-age methods of merchandising foods have made the label the shopper's salesman and best guide in market selections. The descriptive label takes the "guess work" out of shopping, says the Consumer Marketing Information Agent, Mrs. Josephine Lawler. When used to advantage, the label can make shopping easier and thriftier. Develop the habit of label reading. Let the label serve as a window for the package or can.

Low Forest Fire Record Set In State In '56

Michigan recorded a new forest fire record during 1956, when only 702 fires burned an all-time low of 3,420 acres.

The record is particularly significant in view of the high-hazard summer and fall seasons that marked the year, say conservation officials.

Smokers can be particularly proud of their part in the record. An all-time low of 211 fires were reported started by persons using tobacco in the woods. Only one other year in the last three decades have smokers been responsible for less than at least 300 fires per year. During 1932, they were guilty of 234 fires.

Persons who burned debris caused the most fires, a total of 229. Roadways started 54, campfires started 30, incendiaries started 30, lightning started 11 and five began at lumbering operations. At 132 started from miscellaneous causes. The previous record low loss was in 1954, when 3986 acres were damaged in 1,019 fires.

HE'S PURRR-TY!

He's happy, too—and now that we've said that is he a he or is he a she? We do know that's a contented look and we're tryin' to promote the same thing in our meat department with our choice meats. We hope everything you buy brings a smile to your face when you taste it. This week-end we're sorta leamin' to the stew and soup stuff. It's jest bin that kind of a week so if you wanna see some really beautiful short ribs you gotta take a gander at ours and they're jest 39c a lb. You can fix 'em so many ways, too, when they're lean and meaty. Per more lean and meaty stuff there's spare ribs fer 39c a lb. too. With sauer kraut or bar-b-q'd, huh? Then maybe some might a pot of chili when our fresh ground fresh beef is 3 lbs fer $1.19 and a couple cans of kidney beans is a quarter. Another quickie would be some waffles or pancakes and some of our own fresh bulk sausage fer 39c a lb. Bisquick makes good pancakes and waffles and a big box of it is 39c this week-end. The last quickie we got to suggest is some frozen Birdseye chicken pies 3 fer 79c. Fer the week-end eating when most people do something a little extra we'll have U. S. choice beef pot roasts fer 49c a lb and fresh dressed chickens. Sorry we ran out of those stewers last week-end. We'll have extra this week-end tho so hope you're not out of the notion now. Anyhow these stewers will be 49c a lb and the fresh fryin' chickens will be 43c a lb—and we know you'll purr if you have fresh dressed fried chicken cause fresh tastes gooder—right? ? ?

The Handyman's NOTEBOOK

by: BAYARD TUPPER

So much is said these days about power tools that I often think some people are inclined to overlook the importance of hand tools.

That's a mistake, of course, for most projects depend to some extent on the craftsman's ability to use the simpler hand tools skillfully.

Perhaps you could use a pointer or two on how to get your money's worth when you buy them, for even if you're fairly well equipped already, you'll still be making further additions to your tool set.

There's one good rule that you've probably heard a thousand times before, but it still bears repeating: Don't buy cheap tools.

You don't always have to buy the most expensive item of its kind to get full value, but anything that is priced far below average is bound to be cheap in more than price alone.

You can often tell good quality, even without much experience, by examining each tool carefully, comparing one with another. It doesn't take much know-how, for instance, to decide between a wrench that is obviously precision-made of good steel, and one that is crudely made of rough castings.

After a short time, the better-known brand names will become familiar to you, and they, too, can be a good guide to quality.

If you're in doubt about what to buy, remember we're always ready to give you our honest opinion about anything that will help make your "do-it-yourself" projects easier and more economical in the long run.
