Several Seniors Chose Out-State, Small Colleges

Many Farmington High seniors prefer to attend small colleges or out of state colleges rather than Michigan's two biggest schools, Michigan State University and University of Michigan. Below are the choices of several students.

Albin seems a popular choice of many seniors. Those students are: Tony Galkins, who plans on a general course; Dorothy Baldwin, Elementary Education; Tamar Davis, Liberal Arts; Nancy Hodgins, non-pre course; and Nancy Beal, Journalism.

Eastern is the choice of Elaine Hanson. Elaine says she plans to take up elementary education, preferably the fourth or fifth grade. Jerry Porman and Donald Mac Donald plan to attend Olivet. Porman plans to study Business Administration and Mac Donald has not decided on a course as yet.

The University of Wisconsin was selected by Mary Jo Fisher. She will take a non-pre course as she hasn't decided on a special vocation as yet.

Mary Ann Ohman plans on attending Western Michigan. Secondary Education is Mary Ann's objective.

Architecture is the field chosen by Dick May. He plans to attend U of D.

David Clark is going to major in Chemistry. Kalamazoo College is his selection.

Physical education was selected by Carol Reed. Carol plans to attend Central.

Hillsdale was selected by Bill Martin and Jim Steibling. They both plan to take a Business Administration course.

Brandeis in Massachusetts is the selection of Dennis Coffman. Coffman plans to major in English, but as yet he has not decided whether to apply it in teaching or in law.

Mark Twain Readings Given By Local Teacher

Three F.H.S. students heard Mr. Howard Hull impersonate Mark Twain at the final Town Hall lecture at Ford Auditorium, Monday morning, March 4.

Dressed as Twain, Mr. Hull spoke as Mark Twain and gave some of his readings, which included "The Celebrated Jumping Frog of Calaveras County" and excerpts from "Life on the Mississippi."

Nine Preparing For District Forensic Meet

Nine F.H.S. students are working on various readings and are preparing for extemporé speeches for the coming Forensic Contest. Two people from each division of the contest, humor, drama, and extemporé, will represent the school at the district tournament.

In the humorous field, Tamar Davis will read a portion of "Taming of the Shrew." Janet Cervin will do, "His First Football Game" and Alice Lancaster will do a portion of "Cyrano de Bergerac."

Joanne Mikes is one of those who will participate in the dramatic section. Others in this section are Audrey Allen who will do "Hannah" and Jana Brown who will read from "Faust."

Extemporé has also drawn three hopefuls: Nancy Hodgins, Don Pomeroy, and Ted DeGroot.

The local contest will be held before the district meet, March 20-22.

Y-Teens Double Membership

How is it possible? How can a club's membership double within a week?

Well, the Y-Teens have done it and by the looks of things the Y-Teen club is rapidly becoming a solid spoke in Farmington's wheel of clubs. The members of this club are the ones responsible for their new motto is: "Each one bring one."

At last Tuesday's meeting, March 5, each of the girls made white scarves with blue trim. These scarves are to be worn on Y-Teen days. The purpose of these scarves are so that others can inquire if they're interested in membership and to create more enthusiasm in the club. As new members come into the club, each will be given some material to use in their own scarf. The older members have also agreed to act as "big sisters" to the new members.

An Easter party was held at the March 12 meeting. This party was mainly to honor the new members. Betty VanAmeyde was in charge of entertainment for the party and Helen Biggs in charge of refreshments.

New officers were chosen at the February 26 meeting. The officers are: Karen Andrews, president; Betty VanAmeyde, vice president; Sidney Stover, secretary; and Eleanor Spicer, treasurer.

According to a University of Chicago study, banking today rates as one of the top four careers in prestige value. It outranks law, architecture and dentistry.

Falcon Jr. High Cage Teams End Season's Play

The Junior High Eighth Graders completed their basketball season with a much improved team, though they lost their final contest to Waterford, 27-25, for a one and five record.

In their last game of the year, the Eighth Graders showed much more fight than they did in their previous game with Waterford, when they lost by 20 points.

John Fleck and Darrell Allen gave the Farmington team a big boost with their impressive performances in following up the rebounds and with excellent shooting.

On defense, Farmington kept the Waterford players bottled up, mainly because of a well-played game on the part of Douglas Henry, Bud Smith, and Dan Heinonen. The rest of the Junior High Eighth Grade Basketball Team includes Willard, Watson, and Bartsch.

Farmington seventh graders concluded their season with a record identical to that of the eighth graders, winning one and losing five of their games. Likewise, the Junior High Seventh Grade Team played their swan song against Waterford, and again likewise they lost. The seventh graders mustered 15 points, but the Waterford team took the contest, 21-15.

Mr. Carl Dahlstrom, Junior High basketball coach, feels that in spite of their defeat, "the whole team played good ball."

The boys who saw action against the Skippers include Jerry Hurst, who did a good job on rebounds; Bob Anderson, Don Gertler, John Fulton, Alan Clark, Mike Tilder, Dennis Heinonen, and Bill Pepper. D.A.C.

Win Honors In Recent Student Writing Contest

Three English V students, Nancy Lind, Mary Ann Ohman, Karen Senob, and one Journalism student, Don Pember, sent in winning entries to the Detroit News Scholastic Writing Contest.

The annual contest is sponsored by the News for the purpose of encouraging and stimulating more student writing.

Don's single entry "The Last School," which also appeared in an edition of the Blue and White, won in the Journalism Classification.

The three English students entered more than one composition and were not notified which of their entries had won recognition. M.M.

MEAT TIPS

Preparing a cut of meat for the pan may call for a certain amount of trimming, say experts. To get the most good from meat, save any well-favored lean tidbits to make stew or to grind for meat patties. Save the fat trimmings. If they have a good flavor, render or melt them down at low heat, strain the drippings, store in a dry, cold place and use the fat for cooking. Save the bones for soup.
