be predicted, society itself is to blame if nothing is done to prevent them.

How about Pello? Is the number of cases decreasing?

Happy answer to this question is supplied by Dr. F. S. Leader of the State Health Department, is: "Yes."

Until June 18 a total of 34 cases have been reported. This compares with 46 cases in the same period last year, and with 86 cases in 1955 before salk vaccine was available.

With the scientist's careful evaluation, Dr. Leader said, "It is too early to detect a trend, but the outlook is hopeful."

Demand for Salk vaccine, is "tremendous," according to Dr. Albert E. Heustis, state health commissioner. He said that his department has received for free distribution only a "dribble" recently, and that that is being reserved for 1 to 14 year olds and for pregnant women.

Although the supply of vaccine is still "tight," production is picking up, and it will continue to be available. Health officials are recommending that vaccinations be continued all summer.

A Face Familiar in Capitol Circle is attracting attention in its possessor's mirror.

Dr. Eugene B. Keyes, doctor, dentist, lawyer, student of psychiatry and politician, announced recently that he could see a better candidate for mayor of Dearborn than Orville L. Hubbard (who has held the job for the last 18 years) by "looking into my own mirror."

Dr. Keyes did not actually say he was going to run, but he allowed as he was about to get some nomination petitions, "just in case."

In 1954 Keyes ran for nomination as governor on the Republican ticket. He placed fourth in a field of four. This happened, he states, because he had no support from "the checkbook section of the GOP."

Keyes served as Lieutenant Governor in 1943-44 and again in 1947-48.

"I keep thinking I'm cured of politics," Keyes says. "Maybe I should have got married instead of running for office." "I've got to have something to spend my money on," he philosophizes, "and may have to be Orville Hubbard. I helped him get in there and I suppose I should have a sense of responsibility and help get him out."

WHAT'S THE DIFFERENCE?

Hamburger or ground beef, what's the difference?

Ground beef is all beef. Ham burger is beef with suet added. Michigan law says ground beef for fresh sale cannot contain over 30 per cent fat, so this is usually what you buy when you choose hamburger. Individual stores have their own rules about what percentage fat they add to ground beef when making hamburger, but it cannot be more than 30 percent fat.

At present he is awaiting orders to assume duties on the Joint Chiefs of Staff in Washington.

Watson and Alleyne Kinney returned Thursday night, broke hot happy. From their long looked forward trip to Europe. The pleasant part of their homecoming was the warm welcome by friends. The Bronson Allens and the Eric Jansons were on hand with transportation from the plane and food and fresh flowers in the house.

The Kinneys arrived Wednesday aboard the Statendam and were met in New York City by Watson's mother and sister. An exciting part of their post trip was the presence on board of the notorious jewel thieves and dope smugglers pictured in last Thursday's Detroit papers.

After arriving in France, Paris was the first stop, with the Louvre, the Opera, the Folies, the Hotel and Notre Dame and a picturesque trip on the Seine.

The famous watches and cameras of Geneva, Switzerland, prompted purchases of both, with hundreds of pictures being taken for future enjoyment. Lucerne, they stated, was a dream of beauty, with exciting climbs up the mountain by cog railroad, and heavenly Swiss pastry a constant delight to eat. The Jungfrau, Interlaken and Zurich were also visited.

The Kinneys found Venice, Italy, unique and fascinating. They entered Germany by way of Lake Konstanz, then on to quaint and beautiful Innsbruck, Austria, and north to Weisbaden, Gohlzen and Cologne. A boat trip on the Rhine revealed fabulous castles and breathtaking views of the hinterland.

Brussels, Belgium, was the next stop, and Bruges, with its lightning fingered lace makers was a constant source of wonder. Amsterdam...

Botsford Garden Meet Set July 8

The July meeting of the Botsford Garden Club will be held on Monday, July 8, at 1 p.m. at the home of Mrs. Gladys McCague at 29135 Scotten, Farmington.

Co-hostesses for the meeting will be Mrs. Katharine Martin, Mrs. Pearl Mack and Mrs. Pauline Van Camp. A demonstration of floral arrangements will be given by Mrs. Anna Keller and Mrs. Maybelle Meyer.

Members are requested to bring their flowers, containers and other materials that they will use in their own floral arrangements. Hope was expressed that attendance would be considerably better than has been the case at the past few meetings.

Members attending the June meeting at the home of Mrs. M. LaFollette in Milford reported having a wonderful time. A cloth of hand-made Venetian lace was used for the luncheon table cover and the floral piece was of pink, white and deep red peonies and painted daisies. A cake was brought by Mrs. Pauline Kofahl decorated with rose buds. Activities included fishing in a private lake, tramping through wooded areas and generally viewing farm life.

Correction

In the obituary which appeared in last week's issue of The Farmington Enterprise reporting the death of baby Diane Marie Meyers it was indicated that William Meyers was the father of the young child.

William Meyers informed The Enterprise on Thursday that he was divorced from his first wife, Joan Adams, and since remarried and stated that he is not the father of the child.

Baby Diane was living with her mother, Joan Adams, at 30030 West Eight Mile Road at the time of her death on June 21.

Information on the death of the child was supplied to The Enterprise by the funeral home handling burial arrangements and published in good faith.

The first oil well in the U.S. was built in Titusville, Pa., in 1839.
