Begin Harvesting Big Cherry Crop

Plenty of cherries for a wide variety of delicious uses will be available to consumers this year as a result of a harvest that began and will continue in various parts of the state for the next several weeks.

Michigan is expected to produce more than half of the red tart cherry crop of the nation which has done for many years. The Federal-State Crop Reporting Service estimates that the state will harvest 71,000 tons of red tarts. Growers' estimates place the figure slightly under this, but at any rate ample supplies should be available for fresh cherry pie, tarts, jelly, preserves and for home canning and freezing.

Sweet cherries, ideal fresh as a dessert and also popular for canning and freezing, are expected to total 12,500 tons. Michigan ranks third in sweet cherry production and is the largest producer east of the Pacific coast states. This year's Michigan crop has been shown as about 4,500 tons more than last year's.

Michigan's estimated 71,000-ton red tart cherry crop is ahead of the 1956 crop of 55,000 tons. Most of the crop goes to canners and processors, but supplies also will be available at retail stores and roadside stands.

The state's principal red tart cherry is the Montmorency variety. The variety is centuries old and was well-known in Europe before the coming of the white man to the western hemisphere. The variety was named for a valley north of Paris, France where it grew in profusion.

Improved strains of the Montmorency cherry are raised in heavy volume in the west side of the state in a narrow belt paralleling Lake Michigan from almost the Indiana line on the south to past Traverse City in the north.

Be sure you know the limits of your swimming ability and do not exceed them, warn authorities. At least 7,000 persons will die across the nation this summer as the result of accidental drowning. Observe common sense rules for swimming safety.

Several days in Danville as guests of the Ken Sowards, former Danville Mayor. In St. Louis they were told that only three days before their arrival the highways were so flooded that speed boats were cruising down them and water skiers were having great sport. Traces of mud still clung to the leaves of the trees, giving evidence of the height of the water.

They drove to the convention via Memphis, Natchez, New Orleans and Lake Charles, Louisiana. An hour after they left Lake Charles, Hurricane Audrey struck with all its fury. When driving through Beaumont, Texas, they went through a terrific rain and wind storm, not realizing that it was part of the hurricane which had hit Lake Charles.

At Kerrville, Texas, a resort town north of San Antonio, they were guests of George Ross, a Houston attorney and member of the board, at his home, Hill-Ranch.

The board of governors met there for four days prior to the convention.

A fashion show was put on for the ladies around the pool of the Shamrock Hilton, but due to the high degree heat the guests had to view the show from the comparative coolness of the porch. This extreme heat prevailed throughout their stay in Texas.

The Kennedys noted flooded conditions in all parts of the south—in fact the natives remarked that Texas had never been so green. However the farmers were in desperate straits, as their crops were universally ruined.

Guests last week at the Vernon Fisher home were Verne's sister, Mrs. Wanda Pence of Lomax, Illinois and a niece, Mrs. Thomas Taylor, and her children, Barbara, Patty and David of Marietta, Illinois.

The persistent rain put a damper on some of the plans for entertaining the visitors. However they did manage to see the museums at Cranbrook, take a tour of the city including the new Civic Center downtown, drive out to view the horse country around Metamora and Oxford, and had an indoor picnic with Marge at her home on Walled Lake.

Petty Officer, 3rd Class, Bob Weaver returned home to his base at Norfolk, Virginia, after spending a 10 day leave with his parents, the Bob Weavers.

Joe and Art Thurston were hosts last Thursday evening to their poker club. Substitutes were Ginny and Bob Swift and Mr. and Mrs. James Russell of Detroit.

The Nelson McCarthy and the Bill Thompsons recently spent a weekend at The Homestead at Glen Arbor where they visited their parents, Brian McCarthy and Jerry Thompson, who are spending the summer at Leelanau Camp.

Herbert M. Spillman of Little Rock, Arkansas, is spending two weeks as the guest of his son, Gil Spillman.

Dale Golia left Saturday night for Fort Leonard Wood, Missouri, for eight weeks basic training in the army. From there he expects to be transferred to Massachusetts for the remaining 16 weeks of his service.

Dale has been accepted as a student at the General Motors Technical School at Flint and will start his training there as soon as he gets out of service.

"Anything Goes" To Open July 23 At Music Circle

"Anything Goes", the Cole Porter musical that will be presented at the Music Circle Tent Theatre, located on the grounds of the Botsford Inn, Grand River at 8 Mile Road, July 23 to 28, has a most unusual history.

It was originally titled "Bon Voyage". Two weeks before the show was scheduled to go into rehearsal one of the producers died in a disaster in his history occurred off the coast of New Jersey when the S.S. Morro Castle burned at sea with the loss of many lives. Since the plot of "Bon Voyage" concerned the predicaments of a group of people on a ship catching fire at sea it would have been in bad taste to produce, on the stage, a light musical comedy treating of such an incident so soon after the real life tragedy.

But the producers had already signed contracts for the actors and theatres and all the scenery had been built around the nautical theme. The writers, Guy Bolton and P. G. Wodehouse were in England, making it impossible for them to return and rewrite the script.

A desperation collaborating team of Howard Lindsay and Russell Crouse was formed to do the job and the rest is theatrical history for not only was "Anything Goes" a tremendous hit but the two remained together to write such outstanding hit plays as "Life with Father". (The world's long run record holder), and "Arsenic and Old Lace".

In Music Circle's presentation of "Anything Goes", Lee Davis will star as Billy, the young man about town who has sailed aboard the ship to prevent the girl he loves from marrying a stuffy English man. Other featured performers include: Lester Rawlins, Mary Harmon, Sally Knapp, Judy Gully, Ruth Webb, and Gordon Shearer.

If you spent 10 days in reading the latest historical novel, you will have moved your eye muscles about one million times. These muscles can absorb an enormous amount of punishment. They are about 100 times as strong as they need to be and are the most exercised muscles in the body, eye authorities indicate.

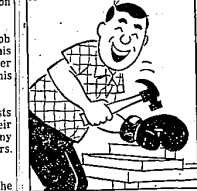

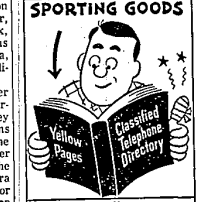

Many Home Gardens In Need Of Nitrogen

"Many home gardens show signs of lack of nitrogen," says John Carew, extension horticulture specialist at Michigan State University.

Nitrogen shortage shows up in the lower leaves in the form of a light yellow coloration.

Carew advises the application of three pounds of ammonium nitrate per 1,000 square feet of ground to correct the nitrogen deficiency.

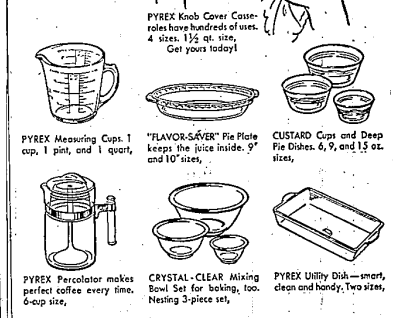

Application should be made along the rows about three or four inches to the side of the plants.
