

New Home Opens Door To Better Family Life

A new home is the key to better living. This theme of National Home Week, which is the 17th in the annual series, points up the advances in home design and construction that can contribute much to your family's comfort and well-being. You're enjoying the modern improvements in practically every other sector of life today—the smoother and quieter cars, faster inter-city turnpikes, plas-

Down The Garden Path

(This is the first in a garden column to be carried in The Observer although we have had many previous requests. For the time being a different Guest Editor will write the column each week telling of her club and its activities along with some timely hints on gardening. We decided Fall was really a perfect time to start "Down The Garden Path"—so by the time Spring rolls around when the gardeners are outside working instead of inside writing, and reading—our column will be a good habit they won't want to break. Ed.)

The Livonia Branch, Women's National Park and Garden Association was organized on June 12, 1963 in a garden column to be carried in The Observer although we have had many previous requests. For the time being a different Guest Editor will write the column each week telling of her club and its activities along with some timely hints on gardening. We decided Fall was really a perfect time to start "Down The Garden Path"—so by the time Spring rolls around when the gardeners are outside working instead of inside writing, and reading—our column will be a good habit they won't want to break. Ed.)

Among the civic projects we have sponsored are the landscaping of Fire Hall Number 2 on Farmington Road South of Plymouth Rd., trees planted at the Plymouth and Cooper schools. Many books on gardening, landscaping and related subjects donated to the Livonia Library, and we have money now earmarked for landscaping a court at the Carl Sandburg Library when plans for the Court are completed.

Keep Patio On Display

A good way to extract more pleasure from an attractive patio and garden area is to keep it on display on a year-round basis — from inside the house.

This can be done through the generous use of windows or sliding glass doors installed in the wall of a living, dining or family room adjoining the patio.

Converting an existing screened-in porch to a year-round room is another project that can add to the enjoyment of an adjoining patio.

Today, factory-made windows and doors of ponderosa pine are available in a variety of standard sizes and styles. This makes it easy to match architectural styles, and eliminates the need for costly custom work in most cases.

Experience may be a great teacher, but no one ever lives long enough to graduate.

Colorful Roof Aids Styling In Old Home

Remodeling a home with color is an art, a science, and a hobby rolled into one. Housewives find that color styling brings out dormant latent beauties, results in new-found beauty for their homes. No other home project can produce such marked improvements at so little cost.

The approach to color styling must start with the house as it is. First comes an appraisal of obvious faults: Is the house drab-looking, too low, too high or too shallow, or just too old-fashioned? Does it need accents to add character, or a harmonizing color to hide defects? What can be done about the problem? The roof, which usually is the largest unbroken color area, helps set the tone of the entire house. The roof color and material should be chosen first — and with care.
