TIPS WITH SHEDD'S FRENCH DRESSING

An attractive buffet table is certainly one of the challenges we homemakers face. The garnish on the ham and the colors of the molded salads make a pretty picture.

Shedd's French Dressing helps themselves. It molded salads are a problem for you, try these tips.

Use slightly less liquid than usual when preparing the gelatin and be sure fruits and vegetables are well drained. If you fill the molds as full as possible, it's easier to unmold when on a platter, and don't try to unmold on a bed of greens. Tuck the greens under the edges of the salad at the last minute. Of course, the food must taste every bit as good as it looks and that's where Shedd's French Dressing comes into the picture. Your salads will all be just right with Shedd's French Dressing because the spices and oils used in Shedd's French Dressing are specially blended to give that brighter flavor that enhances the taste of everything else. In fact, a simple salad of greens becomes a gourmet treat when you use Shedd's French Dressing. Try tossing an unusual combination of greens such as curly endive which has a slightly bitter flavor and Bibb lettuce, and you'll find it mild. Or add some spicy watercress to your next head lettuce salad. It's really the dressing that makes a difference. Shedd's French Dressing does wonders with any salad. Incidentally, try mixing 1/4 cup of Shedd's French Dressing with 1/2 cup melted margarine to spread on sliced French bread.

Wrap the loaf in foil and warm in the oven before serving. Oh yes, one more tip, a spoonful of Shedd's French Dressing in the tomato or vegetable soup makes magic!

Here's a salad dressing with a delightful Continental flair—an exclusive tang with built-in flavor.

Remember, all Shedd's Salad Dressings are made with polyunsaturated oils.
