What a weekend this has been, what a snowpile we are in. Just ask Frank and "Zake" Opp. They had the biggest, best and best drift in the subdivision, all six feet of it.

Jack Stinson tried to get to work on Thursday. He was stuck in the snow, but he didn't get home until Saturday. He was stuck in the snow, but he didn't get home until Saturday.

JACK PATTERSON did manage to fight his way to his office, but didn't get home until Saturday. He was stuck in the snow, but he didn't get home until Saturday.

The call went out to check in for snow. The wind was blowing it in through the louvers in the peaks of the roofs. Personally, I dug snow out of my attic to the tune of about 35 bucket loads.

A TIP OF THE TOPPER to Bob Uvick for using his snow blower to help clear a snow drift that was blocking the road near Old Bedford and Northwick.

Tom Morris helped a number of people with their cars. He took truck loads of people to the grocery store so that they could get supplies.

Many thanks to the many men in Briar Hill who helped others out in a difficult situation. They pushed and dug and shoveled and did ever so many nice things for their neighbors.

A group even went down to 13 Mile and Farmington Road to help dig out that tremendous drift. This helped a man with a desperately ill child get to the police, who in turned got him to the hospital.

THE BRIAR HILL Square Dance Saturday night came off with a bang. All those many clauses who managed to make their way to the Square. Stables at 15th Mile-Road and Drake had a marvelous time.

Jack Patterson and his oldest boy Dick went to the Ford Auditorium on Saturday night and attended the symphony. The guest artist was Gina Bachauer.

ROGER TOWNE was stranded out in Lansing. After much difficulty arrived home. Bob Scott was out in that mess with only a rain coat. Somebody smashed into the rear of his car and jammed about the trunk and hatched in the rear. Rod Hardin was stuck out in Rochester. George Britton flew home from Florida to be greeted by a snow-fake or two. The "Harmes" were in New York and couldn't get home until Saturday.
