

All successful individuals have become such by hard work; by improving moments before they pass into hours, and hours that other people may occupy in the pursuit of pleasure.

LEGISLATORS are being urged to revise the system of sending mentally ill to state hospitals.

Some probate judges feel that the patients could be committed to hospitals without the plea of insanity in court, which often are harrowing in cases of advanced illness.

Rather than go through the court, they suggest commitment by a judge after an examination by two psychiatrists and a system of voluntary commitment after the examination with the signature of the next of kin.

The special legislative committee listening to the suggestions believes some action can be taken during the 1958 session, with long-range planning a n general changes to come later.

Another part of the plan is to, in some way, protect the civil rights of persons sent to a mental hospital. The only right they now retain is that of making a will.

The committee has created a number of subcommittees, each assigned to a different phase of the problem.

Rep. Ben E. Lehman, the committee chairman, said "we will be pretty far along" toward a solution by the time the next legislative convenes in January.
