Electronic "Brain" In Use at MSU

MISTIC, a giant electronic "brain" that can work thousands of times faster than a human brain and never without one, is going to work for research at Michigan State University.

Just completed, the new digital computer is an unbelievably complex maze of thousands of circuits, tubes and transistors, strung together by miles of wire. It was painstakingly assembled by a team of M.S.U. staff members in about a year, and looks something like dozens of television chassis stacked one atop another.

The speed with which MISTIC (short for Michigan State Integral Computer) can solve problems makes it an extremely valuable research tool. It will be used to answer problems originating in areas such as physics, mathematics, chemistry, engineering, agricultural economics and many others.

"The importance of the computer to research," according to Dr. Lawrence W. Von Tersch, director of the M.S.U. computer laboratory, "is that now we can tackle almost any project we want to. It means we won't have to give up a line of research just because it involves an immense amount of mathematical computation."

"The computer is only as accurate as the information we give it," Dr. Von Tersch explained. "It must be told in detail what to do in its own coded language."

Hallow'en Party

Marilyn Gerber and Carol Kappler gave a Halloween Party Saturday November 2, for a Sunday School class. Six children attended. Attending were Jimmie Wycinski, Mary Ann Piper, Jane Seppanen, Harold Hanson, Donna Durham, and Tommy Trats.

Michigan's Mackinac Straits bridge is the costliest span ever built. Not counting the highway approaches, the span cost $100,000,000.

There is only one toll-gate at the Mackinac Straits bridge, linking Michigan's two peninsulas. It is at the St. Ignace side of the span.

Bull Bred Here Among Best

A Guernsey bull bred here by Charles E. Sorenson of Farmington and named "Cesur Muric's Elbon" has become a Summized sire, according to the American Guernsey Cattle Club.

The bull is now owned by Frank D. Brown, Jr., of Port Deposit, Maryland.

To attain this distinction, a bull must have at least ten daughters with official production records. "Elbon" has 24 tested daughters that have made 71 official records. Their average is 9,390 pounds of milk and 482 pounds of fat, when converted to a twice-daily milking, 305-day, mature equivalent basis.

The bull's sire was Cesur Elton Maxim and its dam was Cesur Noble's Muriel, that posted an official production record of 14,508 pounds of milk and 751 pounds of fat.

"Elbon" also has had 19 of his registered daughters classified with an average rating of "desirable."
