State Gets Large Federal Grant For Conservation Michigan will receive $1,242,422 in federal matching funds for game and fish restoration projects during the 1957-58 fiscal year, according to the Department of Interior. The federal funds include $956,500 for game work under the Pittman-Robertson program and $285,900 for fish work under the Dingell-Johnson program. In order to use these funds, Michigan must provide one dollar for every 3-free dollars federal aid.

The federal appropriation to Michigan shows an increase over the $817,000 in game funds and $251,300 in fish funds allotted for during the last fiscal year. These federal funds result from a 11 percent excise tax on sporting firearms, and ammunition and a 10 percent tax on sport fishing equipment. The money raised by these taxes is apportioned to the individual states on the basis of their land and hunting and fishing license sales. Michigan again will receive the maximum allotment of federal game and fish restoration funds, along with Texas. Only 14 states - California and Minnesota - will receive more in federal funds.

Michigan's federal government will appropriate $19,130,000 to the states for game restoration work and $6,000,000 for fish projects. The $25,000,000 total is some $1,000,000 over the previous record total in effect during the last fiscal year.

Under federal law, these funds may be used only for purchase of public hunting lands and public fishing sites, wildlife habitat improvement projects, research and similar activities.

Tiny Mouse Helps Medical Research A tiny mouse is playing a giant part in medical science's fight to cure muscular dystrophy, one of mankind's most cruel diseases. The crippling, muscle-wasting malady afflicts more than 200,000 Americans, most of them children in whom it is almost always fatal. Called "Funny Foot" because of its peculiar walk, science's research has found that one of a strain of mice found to be suffering from a form of muscular dystrophy similar to that in human beings.

Now being bred in a quantity under a $200,000 grant by Muscular Dystrophy Associations of America, Inc., the "Funny Foot" mice are being used by researchers to strain provide a genetic source of the continued generous assistance of the American public, muscular dystrophy, like polio, can be conquered through medical research, MDA officials stated. A beacon of hope for hundreds of thousands of adults and children, the MDA research program is made possible by contributions to the November, March and June "Funnies" research drive. For more information, contact the nearest MDA - sponsored research project.
