

FOOTINGS are now in and blocks going up on another new Farmington elementary school located just south of Warner Farms Subdivision at the south end of Frederick street running through the subdivision. Directly in back of the school site is the old Farmington Cut-Off route and the new Farmington to Brighton Expressway route. It is hoped that work on the new grade school unit, to contain 12 classrooms and a kindergarten as well as a multi-purpose room, can be continued through the winter months so that construction will be completed by mid-summer and the school can be made ready for occupancy by the opening of classes in the fall of 1938. At the present time, youngsters living in Warner Farms Subdivision and the immediate area east of Farmington Road and south of Grand River are being bussed to the Ten Mile elementary school.

Unique Exhibit Now on Display At Cranbrook Institute of Science

An exhibition that is unique and slightly frightening is on view at Cranbrook Institute of Science through January.

Titled "Addams and Anthropology," it features photographic blow-ups of Charles Addams' New Yorker cartoons on the subject of anthropology. For instance, a widow in a hut completely surrounded by skulls is saying "At least he was a good provider."

Giving a sense of the reality of the masks and drums and other pre-historic implements in the cartoons, is a selection of almost identical artifacts from the Institute's own collection: shrunken heads from Ecuador, bark cloth and "house" masks in variety from

New Guinea, poison darts and blow gun from British Guiana; drums from Java. Other items are from Tibet, Nepal, North India, Tibet and Guatemala.

The exhibition, which was set up by two design students from Cranbrook Academy of Art, is lighted in such a way that the effect of the many masks and totem faces is startling.

To obtain one pound of insulin powder, pharmaceutical companies must process 10,000 pounds of animal glands, according to the Health News Institute.

Home Ownership Continues Up

Consumers with incomes of $5,000 and over now own more than half of all the nonfarm homes in the country, according to data compiled by the Federal Reserve System in its Survey of Consumer Finances.

The comparable ratio of home ownership for this income group was less than a third in 1919, when a much smaller proportion of the nation's spending units and a $5,000 a year income.

The figures show that practically 8 out of every 10 nonfarm spending units with incomes of $7,500 or more were home owners as compared with fewer than 7 out of 10 in 1919.

Giant Dome

Largest post-free structure ever built of wood is in Bozeman, Montana, on the Montana University campus. Spanning 300 feet, this sports arena seats 15,000, is made of huge glu-laminated arches built up from smaller pieces of tough Douglas fir structural lumber.

A dose of poison can do its work but once, but a bad book can go on poisoning minds for generations.

Industry Zone Answers Given

The following questions and answers are submitted as public information by the Township Planning Board, in explanation of various phases of the proposed industrial zoning in the Township.

Q. Is it desirable to require residents to work outside Farmington Township?

A. Many of the people in Farmington Township would like to have jobs closer to their homes. Such opportunity would provide greater convenience and reduce traffic loads in the area. Job opportunities would also increase the purchasing power of Farmington Township families. With increasing population, commercial development is on the way. Such development cannot thrive without a high level of purchasing power. It does not seem logical that all of our people should have to go elsewhere to acquire purchasing power or income. By doing so, other communities are reaping the benefit of the industrial land use.

Q. What kind of industries should be allowed in Farmington Township?

A. The area proposed for industrial use in the land use plan appears to be naturally attractive to high class, clean industrial and commercial operations. Such typical operations could include distribution centers, electronics assembly, research facilities, tool and die plants, cutting tool manufacturing, etc.

Matter of Fact!

The American Revolution changed colonial styles overnight. The color and brilliance of costume disappeared with the beaten British armies. This was partly due to the lack of imported materials when commerce with England ended, and partly because of the influence of the frontier, where pioneers originated styles utilizing materials at hand, notably fur and skins. © Britannica Jr., the encyclopedia for home and school.
