Rev. Good St. John's Am. Lutheran Pastor; Work on Parsonage Starts

The Rev. Donald R. Good, who came to Farmington from Eden, Ohio, where he served two Lutheran churches, began his pastoral duties here on January 1, in the service of the new St. John's American Lutheran Church, a mission.

The infant congregation is presently meeting in the Farmington Junior High School at 33000 Thomas, using the gym as a sanctuary for their worship. Construction on the new parsonage was begun on Monday, January 27, on a plot of land at 23255 Gill Road which was purchased by the Mission Board of the American Lutheran Church for the construction of a parsonage, church and parish house. Upwards of $55,000 will be expended to give the new congregation a permanent church home.

The parsonage plan calls for a three-story ranch type construction with garage attached, while the church building will be of a conservative modern architecture which will fit the surroundings in Alta Loma subdivision.

Pastor Good is a native of southeastern Pennsylvania and calls Rogersford, a small community of about 1,000 people approximately 35 miles north of Philadelphia, his home town. He entered the Armed Services and saw action in North Africa, Sicily and Europe. He was discharged from the Army in 1945, Pastor Good married in 1946 in Florida Southern College, Lakeland, Florida, and moved to St. John's University, Columbus, Ohio, at the mid-term of 1948 as a sophomore. He was graduated from college in 1950 and served as a pastor in the Lutheran Church in the fall of the same year.

Detroit and its suburbs are not strange to him as he spent a year as Vice at the Lutheran Church in Detroit, where he met his wife, Carol. After graduation from the Seminary, he accepted a call as assistant pastor at Grace Lutheran Church, Detroit, in 1952.

Father-Son Banquet

The church conducts two training classes each year on Wednesdays at 6:50 p.m. Persons completing six courses receive a certificate of the Evangelical Teacher Training Association, a national Sunday School leadership training program. In addition, many of the Bible School staff of the church take training at the Detroit Bible Institute.
