Bel-Air Hills News Tidbits

MRS. RUTH TROMBLEY GR. 4-2050

Ona Charbonneau of Loomis Road certainly surprised her husband on Saturday evening. She supposedly was preparing for a shower when twenty couples arrived to help Barney celebrate his birthday.

Mrs. Rita Anderson and Mrs. Judy Johnson were hostesses at a shy shower for Mrs. Bodd Colema of Colchester last week. Guests were Doris Beaker, Sherry Hill, Shirley Lindberg, June Davis, Betty Rowe, Gladys LaBarre and Shirley Horner.

The main game of the evening was to diaper a doll blindfolded, which Betty Rowe did in 27 seconds. They couldn't quite believe she could do it that fast. She made her do it a second time and she did it in the same length of time again. Undisputed champion.

Committee Mothers Joan Hunt, Wilma Bliss, Bertha Simonsen, June Davis, Pat Geary, Phyllis Brown, and Mrs. Troop 819 had a card party on Friday evening at the home of Mrs. Bill Bliss on Loomis. This was their one money making project for the year. Betty O'Connor and Sandy Nelson are the troop leaders.

political candidates or campaigns without a vote of the membership.

RIGHT-TO-KNOW legislation is now in the House after passing the Senate with only one dissenting vote.

The bill as it passed to the House requires all state and local government bodies, boards, and commissions, to hold public meetings. It permits "executive sessions" while public officials iron out "delicate" questions in private, but requires that all final decisions be made in public.

PRICE FIXING on milk is all but dead for the 1958 session of the legislature.

Once a major question, it has evaporated as an issue before the outspoken opposition of the Michigan Milk Producers' Association and other powerful farm groups.

Sentiment for price-fixing came following the milk strike two years ago when relations with dairies were strained by two major factors—the low price to farmers and the high price to consumers.

Since that time, farmers have gotten along with the dairies through the feel the middleman is taking too much of a share from the product.

SOLID ARGUMENTS to those who attack the American education system were advanced recently by Dr. John A. Hannah, president of MSU, and J. Montgomery Curtis, director of the American Press Institute at Columbia University. Both men touched on this subject when addressing a meeting of newspaper people at the Michigan Press Association.

Said Curtis: We should be careful in copying an education system which twice during our life time did not prevent a population from leader directly into a world war.

Hannah pointed out that the same education system, which some people now refer to as inadequate, is the same one which made the U.S. the most productive nation in the world and has provided the highest standard of living. This is the system, he said, which has come the power of the atom, sulfur dyes, Salk vaccine and many other scientific advances.

Hannah stated that educators in the United States had been neither asleep or standing still. The record would show, he said, that they long had been trying to get public support for improved teaching of science and mathematics; had been trying to gain support for revising their programs.

Though he did not state it, the implication was clear that launching of Sputnik had awakened the public to a new interest in the steps educators had been trying to take for some time.

Mrs. Jackie Dix, president of the Bel-Air Ladies Bowling League, reports that the Diamond Builders are in first place, followed by Wilson's (Joe Martell). Members of the Diamond Builders team are Betty Rowe, June Davis, Doris Simpkins, Gene Searcy and Bev Garrett. On Wilson's team are Gladys King, Doris Baker, Irene Kree, Sherry Hill and Betty Spelded. Individual high games are held by: Bertha Simonsen, 217; Jackie Dix, 216; Shirley Lindberg, 189; and Odette Annulla, 190. Jackie Dix, with a 565, Bertha Simonsen, 525 and Bev Garrett, 509, hold high individual series honors.

Bev Garrett qualified for the March of Dimes bow-locks at the Whittier Recreation in the Farmington Lanes.

Wilma and Bill Bliss and family of Loomis spent the weekend at Litchfield, Mich. They helped their grandmother, Mrs. VanWert celebrate her 82nd birthday.

Betty and Lee O'Connor of Lamar recently attended an old-fashioned box-lunch social and square dance at the home of Robert Simpson's. Ten couples were present.
