U-M Center Helps Women

Two programs especially designed to answer questions about "What It Is Like To Be An Adult Woman Student" have been planned by the Center for Continuing Education of Women at the University of Michigan. Women returning to campus are invited to share ideas and experiences with others who are combining school with jobs and families. The informal conversation on Thursday, Aug. 23, 9:30 to 11:30 a.m., will be in the center, 330 Thompson Street, Ann Arbor. From 1:30 to 3:30 p.m.

there will be an opportunity to talk with women graduate and undergraduate students about choosing courses and planning academic programs in traditional and non-traditional fields. An academic adviser will also be available. All interested women and men are welcome at one or both sessions. The Center for Continuing Education is a clearing house for information about the university. It is a place to discuss individual plans or browse in the library of educational and vocational material especially selected for women. It is open weekdays, 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m.
