A SPECIAL CORNER is set aside at the first annual Farmington Art Exhibit at the Farmington Universalist Church for scenes painted by the gardeners.

Arthur Pusey of 11 Mile Road, Farmington, is shown above painting a downtown Farmington scene to be entered in the exhibit which will run through August. Looking on are Carol and Dorothy Schudt of Livonia. All local painters who have leaf scenes to enter are urged to do so immediately and those who have not to get busy with their paints and brushes and get one ready. It is possible, an official spokesman said, that prizes may be awarded the best paintings.

All paintings to be displayed must be entered during regular show hours — 8:00 to 8:30 p.m. daily and between 2 and 4 p.m. Saturday and Sunday — at the Farmington Universalist Church at Warner and Thomas St. in downtown Farmington.

Local Art Work Well Received

Gratifying compliments from visitors have been paid the artists who have submitted paintings displayed at the Farmington Universalist Church art exhibit and sale, an official spokesman said this week.

The paintings are exhibited with the hope visitors will purchase one or more of these reasonably priced original oils and water colors. The first week of the exhibit resulted in the sale of ten per cent of the paintings entered.

Artists interested in submitting paintings for exhibition and possible sale should bring them to the Farmington Universalist Church, Warner and Thomas Streets, Farmington, between 8:30 and 8:30 p.m. Monday through Friday and 2:00 p.m. to 4:00 p.m. Saturday and Sunday.

Painters of 14 other artists from Livonia, Plymouth, Redford and Southfield have also been submitted.

SUMMER SHRUBS —

Here and there in Farmington gardens a few shrubs are in bloom. These summer blooming shrubs, which are relatively few in number, are not as widely planted as the spring flowering trees and shrubs, but they should be used by gardeners who wish to have a continuous season of shrub bloom.

There is a variety of tamarisks, Summer Glow, that has the same feathery foliage and pink plumes as the spring flowering trees, but is daintier and more graceful. It blooms throughout the summer and deserves to be more widely planted than it is.

Several varieties of spirea are blooming now. Some, such as the Anthony Water Spirea, bear flat clusters of bright pink flowers. Others have conical shaped clusters.

Buddleia, too, bear pink, white, or purple cone-shaped clusters of bloom. They are called "butterfly bush". The beauty of the shrub is much enhanced by the gay-hued butterflies that may almost always be fluttering from blossom to blossom. Buddleia flower better if pruned almost to ground level each spring.

Potentilla and Hypericum both have yellow flowers. They begin blooming in spring, but lowering continues throughout the summer. Potentilla grow no more than three feet tall. Hypericum's ultimate height is four or five feet.

Vibex, a shrub that produces purple spikes in late summer, is a good plant for the shrubbery border, but it is rarely seen.

ORIENTAL POPPIES —

The oriental poppies that blazed so brightly in June's garden are completely disappeared by now. Even the foliage has withered away. They have entered a dormant period which will last a few weeks. Then, in early fall, a rosette of new leaves will appear which remains green throughout the winter.

The time to transplant these poppies is during their dormant season. They have a long, fleshy brittle tap root which must not be injured, so when digging old clumps dig deeply. They will grow well in almost any kind of soil, but do best in a rich garden loam.

Oriental poppies come in a wide range of shades. The brilliant, glowing flame-orange is most often seen.

CAP Girls Encampment Full of Activity

Farmington Civil Air Patrol Cadets Joan Beck, Janice Dwyer, Gail Farrell and Janet Lustig arrived home last weekend from a two week encampment at Chase Air Force Base in Illinois.

The two hour flight on July 20th to attend the Michigan Wing CAP Cadet Encampment was made in a C-123 plane.

Since the encampment was designed to orient the cadets in Air Force life, their schedule was similar to that of the student airman on the base.

After reveille, the cadets prepared their barracks for an inspection by the cadet commander and his staff and then marched to the student mess-hall for their cafeteria style breakfast.

Cadets had classes on the flight line in the morning in which they were introduced to the operating facilities of the Air Force aircraft and equipment. Jet engines, air refueling, parachute rigging, firefighting and air weather service were some of the flight line classes.

A rest period after lunch provided cadets with an opportunity to write home or sleep.

Some of the afternoon classes taught in the barracks area were communications, map reading, search and rescue, or first aid and first aid certificate. Physical training and athletics followed.

Following the evening meal the cadets had time until 10 p.m. These hours were spent swimming, dancing, watching TV, seeing movies or taking part in sports activities.

Special activities included a graduation dance, talent show, senior-cadet baseball game and a pass-in-review of the Wing's training and operations officers.

Today, cadets received encampment ribbons and certificates.

MRS. DAVID KRINGS
GR. 4-9644

Mr. and Mrs. Don Chamberlin and three children, Lynne, Don UI, and Sheila, of Dohany Dr. have returned at Pontana Dam vacation spent at Pontana Dam in North Carolina. They took in many points of interest enroute to the Smokies, including a visit to Cumberland Falls. Horseback riding and swimming in a heated pool were the highlights of the vacation.

A four day week-end trip took Joe Evangelista for a visit with his relatives in Toronto, Canada, and sight-seeing in London, Toronto and Niagara Falls. His brother, Michael, has been spending the past month visiting with relatives in various cities in New York.

Many families in our subdivision have spent their vacation at home, visiting points of interest in and around Detroit and entertaining friends and relatives, some from far away places.

Last Tuesday, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Kasch, enjoyed a visit from Sister Bonaventure and Sister Petri of Aurora, Illinois. The two nuns are cousins of Mrs. Kasch and have been visiting with many relatives in Detroit.

Young Johnny Richerts is up and at 'em again since his short visit to the hospital recently. Somehow he doesn't seem to miss the tonsils which they removed!

From London, Ontario, came Mr. and Mrs. A. Dorman. He spend a few days with the James Browns of Dohany Dr. this last week. On the week-end, the Browns had their three grandsons from Detroit; Roger, Jimmy and visiting with them their five granddaughters, Penny, Ann Lee, Erma, Marilyn and Sally Brown. Though they look forward to these week-ends with grandma and grandpa, in the 'country'.

Showing points of interest to our weekend visitors have been the Woodwards of Dohany Dr. busy the last two weeks. Mr. and Mrs. Adrian Broer and son, Dennis, from St. Petersburg, Florida have been their house guests.

LI. Commander George Krings, together with his wife Ruth and son Daniel, were the guests of the David Krings last Sunday. George a nephew of the Krings was retired in July after twenty years service as a Navy flier and just returned the end of June from a two year stay in the Philippines. It will take many such visits to catch up on the news about each other since they have not been together since the David Krings were in California five years ago.

On Sunday, Mrs. Arthur Conklin, Jr. had family dinner, to help celebrate her mother's birthday. Her mother, Mrs. Iva Ross, came from Ypsilanti and from Wayne came her brother and wife, Mr. and Mrs. Dempster Ross, and four children.

On July 27th, Michael Gregory helped his pal Terry Burke of Starn Acres celebrate his 10th birthday. All the boys had ice cream and cake, before enjoying the movie at Redford Theatre and on return in the evening, had hamburgers and all the fixin's.

Activities Are Many, Varied On Camping Trip Out West

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Reagan with eight girls from Wing Scout Troop 258, recently went on a camping trip as far west as South Dakota.

They camped out in state parks in Indiana, Wisconsin, Minnesota and North Dakota. At Indiana Dunes State Park they swam in Lake Michigan and climbed the dunes. In Wisconsin they took a boat trip on the Lower Dells of the Wisconsin River.

Four days were spent camping on the shores of Silver Lake, Custer State Park in the Black Hills of S. Dakota. Among other things, the group rode horseback to Mt. Harney, highest peak in the Black Hills. Mt. Rushmore and Wind Cave. They saw buffalo and burros at Wind Cave Restaurant and ate buffalo burgers.

A visit with the Harding family, of Power Road, Farmington, at Rockerville, South Dakota, where they work in the summer, was also enjoyed. While there they drank sarsaparilla in an old time saloon and saw an old-time play in a tent theater.

One day was spent at Lead, between Deadwood and Spearfish Canyon. A gold mine was visited, a frontier museum at Deadwood and the Mt. Moriah Cemetery at Mt. Moriah to see the graves of Wild Bill Hickock, Calamity Jane and Potato Creek Johnny.

On the trip back to Michigan, the group was in two very bad windstorms and one night their tents almost blew into a lake. The last leg of the trip was spent crossing Lake Michigan on the Milwaukee Clipper.

Girls taking the trip were: Lois Leach, Carol Dustin, Nancy King, Jan Morrish, Marcia Moorhead and Sharon Butler and Margo McGlocklin of Livonia.

Nancy King met the group at Cedar Bridge, Michigan, and stayed the last night with them.

On returning from the trip Marcia Moorhead went to Camp Narrin for a month for her second year of C.I.T. training. She is now a member of the camp staff.

Lois Leach and Mrs. Fred Reagan more recently took a group on a Council sponsored

Loraine Hawley Becomes Bride

Loraine Ann Hawley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Vera Hawley of Farmington, became the bride of Lawrence Eugene Toth, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Toth of Williamston, Michigan, on July 26th.

The ceremony was performed at Grace Lutheran Church with Pastor V. Frederick Halboth officiating.

The newlyweds will make their home in Lansing. Lawrence is a senior at Michigan State University.
