Rogers, Guy Wedding Solemnized in Ohio

The week-end of October 18th found many local residents and Michigan residents traveling to Youngstown, Ohio, for the wedding of Judith Rogers, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph W. Rogers of that city, and Dan M. Guy, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Dan Morris Guy of Shawwassee, Farmington.

The wedding took place at 2:40 p.m. on October 18th at the First Presbyterian Church, with Dr. W. Frederick Miller officiating at the double ring ceremony.

The bride's gown de sole and Alencon lace, featured a square neckline and three-quarter length sleeves. The skirt was bell shaped, with a bustle bow and chapel train of pure de sole. Her fingertip veil was of pure silk, attached to a cap of silver lace and tiny peau de soie bow. She carried a bouquet of white orchids, roses and stephanotis.

Proceeding the bride, down the aisle were J. Ann Rogers, who acted as maid of honor for her sister, and bridesmaids Marianne Anderson, Betty Ann Arneson and Carol Fraser. Their gowns were fashioned alike of silk faille, with V-neckline, long sleeves and the bow at the waistline matching their Dr. or ivory hats. The maid of honor's gown was Oldenham pink, while that of the bridesmaid were a deep burgundy shade. All carried white Fugi mums.

Mrs. Joseph Rogers chose for her daughter's wedding a blue V-neck peau de soie dress with a bell shaped skirt and matching accessories. Mrs. Dan M. Guy, the bridegroom's mother, wore an amethyst dress in Empire style with matching hat. Both mothers wore Cymbidium orchids.

Dan had chosen James Stover of Summit, New Jersey, to act as best man. Seating the bridesmaids were William Armstrong, James Blyden, Danton Helms, Jonathan Walton, Kenneth Venderbush and Thomas Guy, his brother.

For the enjoyment of the 350 guests who gathered at the Youngstown Country Club, an orchestra played for dancing throughout the reception. A buffet supper was held in the early evening at the bride's home on Geneva Drive for about 100 close friends and relatives.

Following their wedding trip to Bermuda, the young couple will be at home at 1401 Wood-

Anyone in need of nursing care in the home or wishing to obtain information about the service may call the VNA at Royal Oak, LI 2-2000, central office for the Farmington area.

"Hidden River" Well Received First Weekend

Free coffee between the acts proved a very popular extra attraction for those attending "The Hidden River," the Farmington Players' fall presentation at the Junior High auditorium last weekend.

Outstanding among the performers was Bud Kaufman in the role of Jack. A newcomer to the stage, Kaufman handled himself like a veteran, giving all the credit to experienced actors. Dorothy Miller as Marie was particularly effective in this smallish part.

Typical comments by members of the audience could be summarized by Miss Cecil Buch, secretary to a Detroit executive, who said, "I didn't expect to show to be so professional."

One lady from Novi, who asked that her name not be mentioned, said, "It was very well done, although I prefer a comedy, but it was certainly worth attending."

Don Briggs, president of the Farmington Players, said, "We have a real show. All of the Players members who have worked on 'The Hidden River' are to be congratulated. The actors, who said, 'I didn't expect to show to be so professional.'"

Under the direction of Mr. E. Ellegood, "The Kendallarks" Choral Group made their debut at the season at the Child Education Association Tea in Royal Oak on October 16. Selections for the program were "Ezekiel Saw the Wheel," "I Talk to the Trees," and "You'll Never Walk Alone."

Two engagements are scheduled for December including a variety show for which rehearsals have already begun.

He still has too late for ladies interested in joining the Kendallarks to contact Mrs. William Danz, GR 4-8896 for audition appointments.

Dramatic Talents Brought Out In Little Theatre Activities

Walter Spewak once wrote a satire on government bureaucracy which dealt with two nice little ladies who continued their work for the United States long after their bureau, office, they had been abolished. They kept taking their work with them, those lovely characters in the Spewak show. She loves her work.

The comedy Mrs. Nahstoll, who is a Farmington resident, doesn't secretly burn the pay checks like the ladies in the play did, she doesn't get any pay checks for her work with the Little Theatre. But when the curtain goes up opening night October 31, her thrill probably will be as great as if she did.

All through high school and college Mrs. Nahstoll wanted to play a lead in a play - any play. But people at that time didn't recognize her as a new obvious talent.

"The closest I ever came," she relates, "is the year I got the second lead in the high school opera."

It wasn't until after she left Michigan State to teach elementary school in Belding, Michigan, that she began to get recognition as a truly talented dramatist. In 1938 and 1939 she played the leads in the Belding Civic Players productions of "The Bearers" and "Meet the Wife."

A matter of marriage then took her from the stage temporarily. Her husband George, a quality control man now at the General Staff office of Ford Motor Company, took up residence in the Detroit area. The Ford Players consequently got the benefit of her talent.

She directed the first production of the Ford Players, a play, strangely enough, which was a satire on Little Theatre groups. Following this the versatile Mrs. Nahstoll played the lead in "Post Road," a smaller part in "You Can't Take It With You."

Not content to be a mere participant in various theatre groups, Hope actually was one of the founders of the Farmington Players. Besides being a founder, she has also played leads, directed, and been elected president of that group.

"Behold" are plays she directed in Farmington.

She joined the Dearborn Players in 1949, where, characteristically, she became a director, producer, and stage manager, and Children's Theatre.

"Wake Up, Darling" will run five nights - October 31, November 1, and November 3, at the home of Mrs. Alice Nichols. Like Spewak's lovable ladies, she enjoys her work.
