

Civil Defense Lesson Topic

A lesson on civil defense was given at the November 5 meeting of the Farmington-Eight Mile Extension Club.

Mrs. Frank Platz was group chairman and the lesson was given by Mrs. C. Meyers and Mrs. P. Dickinson. Hostess was Mrs. H. McCague and special guest Mrs. P. Van Camp.

Members were given information on planning shelters for the disaster, steps to follow in the event of a fire and the use of fire extinguishers. They were also urged to get acquainted with the community Civil Defense program and learn fully about the town's plan for protection in the event of a disaster.

On November 11 members visited their adopted ward at Northville State Hospital.

The next meeting of the club will be held December 17.

Learning Never Ends; Teachers Are Attending Classes Also

If your test or homework papers are not corrected soon after a night, that person on the other side of the desk may have a good reason: he or she may be going to school, too.

A quick survey of the F.H.S. faculty shows that at least nine faculty members are taking night classes (we may have missed a few).

The nine include: Miss Marjorie Cramer, Mrs. Laura Wulfman, Mr. Richard Tyler, M. P. Dour, Mrs. Tom Pearce, Miss Rita Perry, Mr. George Barrons, Mr. Don Miotto, and Mr. Lee S. Peel.

Miss Cramer is taking a Library Science course. Miss Cramer described the course by saying, "It is the description of books and the way they are used."

Mr. Tyler is taking a course in Michigan History. He said, "I am taking this for three reasons: for the history, for the background of Michigan, and to help me with my American Government classes."

Miss Pion, English teacher, is taking a course in major English Writers and all-American English. Miss Pion is studying these courses because she feels that she needs more preparation in English literature.

Mr. Barrons is taking a course at Wayne that has to do with the structure of American Education.

History Classes Visit Greenfield

Mrs. Laura Jean Wulfman's first and second hour American History classes journeyed to the Henry Ford Museum at Greenfield Village, Monday, November 10. Accompanying them were Mrs. Conrad Laim and Mrs. Grace Johnston.

Since the classes are studying and will be studying nineteenth century America, points of interest especially noted were examples of early American transportation, home equipment, old school books, and a Civil War relics which tied in with their studies.

The 52 students who went are now expected to pick different exhibits to write about for the class.

Senior Play This Weekend

"The play is not an easy one, but we have all worked hard to make it a success as we hope it will," commented Jackie Levin, who portrays Lo Tsen in the production of "Lost Horizon" in the Farmington Junior High Gymnasium.

The committees are busy preparing for this Friday and Saturday night. The costumes are lined up and ready, the makeup committee is out of the experimenting stage and is ready to "smoke" all lines and relearned, and all the important tickets have arrived. The only practice left for make-up and a dress rehearsal will be the final dress rehearsal tonight.

Tickets can be purchased from any cast member. R.G.B.

Will Attend State Home Ec Conference

Mrs. Marjorie Ellis will attend the annual state conference for homemaking teachers Friday and Saturday, November 14 and 15 in East Lansing at Kellogg Center.

Theme of the conference is "Progress and Projection of Homemaking Education." Mrs. Ellis will be a hostess Saturday morning for the interest group on "Consumer Education."

"The Junior Class will present a dance on November 21. No further information has been released as yet."

Taking Part in U.M. Honors Program

Judith A. Cook of 33737 Macomb, Farmington, was among a select group of 355 University of Michigan freshmen and sophomores named to participate in the College Honors program of the College of Literature, Science and the Arts.

The College Honors Program offered for the first time in September, 1957, is designed to provide unusually challenging opportunities for superior students. Special counseling by faculty members of the Honors Council, Honors courses and special sections of regularly offered classes are among the opportunities available to the honors students.

First-semester freshmen interested in the program were selected on the basis of high school records, test scores and other available information according to Prof. Robert C. Angell, director of the LSA Honors Program.

In most cases, the freshmen came to Ann Arbor during the summer for orientation, testing and interviewing prior to selection.

Freshmen in their second semester of residence at the U-M and first-semester sophomores are considered for the program if they have maintained a 3.5 average and have indicated potential for further successful scholarship. (An "A" is equal to 4 points, a "B" to 3 points.)

Professor Angell said that the Honors Program enables the U-M to do the "best job it can for those who are intellectually curious and eager."

FHS Leads in League Race For Trophy

The sportsmanship trophy race between the Farmington and Inter-Lakes League schools for this football season is presently drawing to a close.

Farmington is in the lead with 40 points. Berkeley is next with 32 points, followed closely by Walled Lake and Southfield each with 35 points. Van Dyke and Waterford bring up the rear end of the league with 32 and 34 points, respectively.

The school with the lowest number of points at the end of the season receives a revolving trophy which is given to the winning school each year.

Two scorers from each school, a faculty member and a student, are picked to grade the opposing team on five areas.

These areas include the attitude, attendance, and the spirit of the student body.

The other groups include the cheerleaders, the team, and the coaching staff. In each of these groups they are judged on attitude, spirit, and courtesy to the visiting school.
