OPEN EVENINGS 'TIL CHRISTMAS

Shriners Have Anniversary, Yule Party

The Greater Farmington Shrine Club held its first anniversary and Christmas party at Guffin's Frontier Town on Thursday evening, December 11th.

One hundred and twenty-five members, ladies and guests were on hand to enjoy a relaxing cocktail hour, and then a fine turkey dinner, with all the trimmings.

In attendance were Nobles Herbert Payne and Frank Bostrom Of Moslem Temple's Divan and their wives. Charles E. Merrill, Imperial Marshall, was on hand to present a beautiful diamond-studded Shrine pin to Al Gain, retiring president, as a token of esteem from the Farmington Club.

Entertainment was provided by Dick Kefgen as master of ceremonies who is really a harmonica wizard. Mel Snyder fascinated the audience with the many figures, animals, etc. he created with balloons. The Hi-Fis provided music during dinner and for the entertainment.

Prizes, gifts and corsages were given to the ladies, and Charter Membership cards were given to charter members.

The club's next meeting will be held at Guffin's on January 8th. for election of officers for the ensuing year.

Select Toys for Child With Care; Give Only Items He or She Can Use

If you intend to give toys, know what the child can use before you buy them, Dr. Joseph G. Molner, Health Commissioner. Adults must watch that they do not buy gifts to please themselves rather than to give pleasure to the child.

Make sure one of your first considerations is the child's happiness, but remember that safety and suitability for age are important if they are to bring this happiness. Wise selection of toys as gifts by aunts and other relatives will help to give the child's parents an enjoyable Christmas in addition to delighting the child. Select toys that are durable to give to young children. They should be easily cleaned and not have removable parts small enough to be swallowed.

Each toy should stimulate its owner to some activity, either mental or physical. Some of the longtime favorites which meet this requirement include dolls, wagons which have pull strings or round handles and blocks with rounded corners. These are universal favorites with children, because they can be used by youngsters of different ages and under almost all circumstances. Instead of buying toys which do things, it is well to remember that children need to do things with their toys. Activity should come from the child not from the toy.

Normal physical growth and personality development require opportunity for wholesome play and toys are the tools of play. Take into consideration the age and living conditions of the child before you buy toys. A sled or skates given to a boy who has no safe place to use them only tempts him to take unnecessary risks and to use them in unsafe places or else they make him feel frustrated because he can not enjoy them.

The tiny baby's first toy should be a bright one to hang where he can follow it with his eyes, but not grab it. When he is three to four months old, he can grasp and hold a rattle. A child between one and two years is learning fast and he needs toys to push and pull, to load and unload, to pile up and knock down again.

A young child will be happier if his holiday celebration is spread over several days. If he is given too many toys at once, he is merely confused and bewildered and his enjoyment diminishes by the confusion. Make sure the toys you give him do not have sharp points and that they will not break or splinter. Avoid stuffed animals with glass or button eyes which a child might breathe into his windpipe or shove into his ear.

Young children and babies are sensitive to the emotions of those closest to them. If there is baby or young child in your family, surround him with the feeling of security and warmth of a happy family holiday and try not to make it too different from the experience he is accustomed to on other days. Don't overwhelm him with too many visitors, too many toys, or too much excitement. If you expect him to have a happy Christmas, make sure that he has enough rest by preventing over-excitement.

Space Age In Michigan 100 Years Old

Michigan got off the ground and smack into the Space Age just a century ago, according to material in The University of Michigan Historical Collections.

Charles M. Cleveland, a young clerk in his father's general store in Adrian, then a town of 7,000, recorded in his diary a lively account of a balloon ascension by a resident, W. D. Banister, on Sept. 16, 1858. Banister used a balloon belonging to Ira Thurston, veteran balloonist from Lima, New York.

With 500 Sunday school picknickers from Jonesville watching, Banister climbed into the car suspended below the gas bag. Partially released, the balloon showed so much bouyancy that Banister invited Thurston to accompany him on the flight.

When the ropes were released, the balloon rose rapidly and floated off in a northeasterly direction. The open valve permitted enough gas to escape so that the balloon gradually descended and landed in Riga township.

With the aid of volunteers, the aeronauts removed the netting from the bag and detached the car. To expedite deflation Thurston sat on the valve block, a circular board one inch thick and 12½ inches in diameter, resting on the ground. Holding the collapsed top of the bag with his arms and legs he directed Banister and two others to raise the mouth of the balloon so that gas might flow out more rapidly.

They obeyed and Thurston told them to let go. Banister and one other did, but the third, a farmer, Westerman, retained his hold. Released of half its human ballast, the balloon bounded into the air. When it was 10 feet from the ground, Westerman dropped off but Thurston, sitting on the valve block, grasping the collapsed part of the bag, held on.

"Follow me across the field," Thurston called. "It will be all right."

But he had underestimated the buoyancy of the remaining gas, and the balloon rose rapidly into the air.

Rooted to the spot with horror, the spectators watched the upside-down bag veer away toward the northeast with Thurston clinging for his life to his precarious perch.

According to F. Clever Bald, assistant director of the Michigan Historical Collections, "News of the runaway balloon was quickly spread about the town. The huge deflated bag was found in Ontario on the farm of Joseph Marks, 30 miles from Windsor. There was no trace of Thurston.

"In spite of a prolonged search, his body was never found. It is likely that he lost his grip and fell from his seat on the valve block either into Lake Erie or Lake St. Clair."

Curves are particularly dangerous in winter time, advises the Institute for Safer Living. Slow down gradually before entering a wet or snowy curve. Avoid turning wheels suddenly to right or left.

One little jack can lift a car, but it takes a lot to keep one up.

At Home in Old Homestead

Jacqueline Davis GR. 4-1230

Two new families moved into Old Homestead Subdivision during November. The first is Donald and Mary Ellen Greenbur, whose home is at 35559 Lyman Rd. This was the former home of Mr. and Mrs. A. Torok. The Greenbury's have one little girl named Kay. Before moving to Farmington they made their home in Livonia.

The second family is that of Allen and Marguerite Dale at 36634 Lyman Rd. They and Brian, 9, Larry, 7, and Mary Kay, 5, formerly made their home in Oak Park.

JOHN CLINTON DAVIS, the very newest resident of Old Homestead, is also the reason that this column did not appear last week. The seven pound redhead was born to Bob and Jackie Davis on Wednesday, December 3rd, at Highland Park General Hospital. He joins a sister, Joy Ann, and brother, Kenneth, to make up the Davis family.

Kay Humm flew to Indianapolis, Indiana the day before Thanksgiving to visit her family, some members of which she has not seen for six or seven years. She had a very enjoyable time with the exception of the heavy snow. The weather caused Kay's return flight to be cancelled so she came home by train on December 8th.

KEN RUSSELL was also delayed in returning home by the weather. In his case however, it was a hunting trip near the Tahquamenon River. The party had gone to their camp site by boat, but the river froze which forced the men to walk the seven miles out to transportation. In order to bring out all their equipment and deer the men had to make the trip twice. Of the eleven men in the party Ken was one of the fortunate three who got their bucks. His had 8 points.

There were two birthdays in the Humm family in the past week. On Saturday, December 6, Bonny celebrated her eighth birthday with guests Tammy Tabb, Patty Bowman, Terry Simmons, Randy Christian, and Kenny Counce. Following lunch at movies in Farmington. Gayle Bonny took her friends to the Humm celebrated her twelfth birthday with a quiet family dinner on Thursday, December 11th.

THE SKATING rink has been getting a great deal of use in this weather. In case you have not seen it, it is located three lots west of Old Homestead Rd. on Lyman Rd. Although most of the skaters are considerate of the younger children, a few have engaged in rough-housing and wrestling without realizing how dangerous their skates can be. Fortunately there have been no injuries to date. I hope that we can make the same report at the end of the season.

The Square Dancers met on Saturday night at the home of Don and Irene Barth. Ten couples were present to take part in the dancing and the grab-bag exchange of Christmas gifts. Jean Lattimer, Pat Morgan, and Dorothy Furlong, the cohostesses, for the evening, decorated the tables and the refreshments in keeping with the coming holiday season.

A REMINDER about the Old Homestead Christmas parties on Saturday, December 20. The pre-school thru first grade children should wear play clothes for the party at the Raddatz's home. Santa will be there to distribute gifts. The children in grades 2 thru 6 should be dressed for outdoors. The skating party will be on the subdivision rink with refreshments and grabbag at the Wiedman home. Both parties are to be from 2 to 4 p.m.

How to Purify Drinking Water

Everyone should know how to purify drinking water, whether he uses the information on a hunting trip, after a disaster or even an enemy attack, say authorities.

Good methods of purifying water include the following which are recommended by the Federal Civil Defense Administration.

(1) BOILING — Boil water for 5 to 10 minutes. It may not be possible to boil water, however, in case of power failure.

(2) CHLORINATION — Any household bleach solution that contains hypochlorite may be used to purify water. Use 4 drops of 5.25 percent sodium hypochlorite bleach solution to 1 gallon of clear water. Let stand for 30 minutes.

(2) WATER PURIFICATION TABLETS — These tablets are available at drug stores. Follow directions on package.

(4) IODINE — Add 2 to 3 drops of household iodine to each quart of clear water. Mix and let stand for 30 minutes.
