SPECIALIZED SHOP training is now being offered at Farmington Sr. High. This has been made possible by the expansion of the shop area to almost double its previous size and by dividing it into three separate sections. Very popular among students is the expanded auto mechanics department. Students in one of the auto mechanics classes are shown here working on various phases of auto maintenance and repairs. This training should be highly useful. Many of the boys enrolled in these classes plan to continue their training in automotive engineering or related fields after graduating from high school.

Home Fire Drill

An ounce of prevention is well worth a handful of tragedy. Family fire drills, knowing exactly what to do if fire should strike suddenly is a vital safety measure for every household, say insurance authorities. Regular fire rehearsals will help to minimize panic if the real thing occurs.

Editor-Columist Marshall F. Sayles, The East Jordan, Mich., News-Herald. — How come the self-made man who didn't need an education shows up on so many school boards? ... Outer space scientists aren't such hot shots, after all. Christopher Columbus discovered a whole new world with nothing to go on but an empty stomach. ... The only thing the nickel is good for these days is to put the cigarette machine in condition to receive a quarter.

SEVERAL PIECES of new equipment are now being installed in the metal working section of the Farmington High shop, including lathes, drill presses and milling machines. For those planning to go to work in industrial shops immediately after graduation, the training will be highly valuable. Far more important, however, is the fact that the practical training will be a big help to those planning to continue their training in the mechanical engineering field.

Child Fires

Children under ten years of age cannot be expected to realize the serious consequence of playing with matches or fire. Never leave them alone in the house. Remember, the high price of a child's life may hinge on the small cost of paying a baby sitter.

GLAD TIDINGS

May the joyous promise of the first Christmas find fulfillment in your heart... bringing you peace, good will and happiness to brighten all the days of the coming year.

THE CORRECT use of power driven saws and other equipment is an important phase of the training offered students in the new wood working section of the Farmington Sr. High shop. Students watch intently as a fellow student demonstrates the proper procedure to follow in sawing a small piece of wood. In this "do-it-yourself" age when nearly every man is a home handyman, the training will be of considerable value even for those who never intend to go on in this field of training. Watching carefully for any mistakes which the student might make is Earl Baumunk, wood shop instructor (extreme right).
