

News from Briar Hills

Have you noticed how the Christmas decorations have blossomed forth on the homes this past week? Briar Hill will really put its best foot forward this year because so many new families have moved into the subdivision.

Christmas time means parties and good cheer and many "Briar Hillers" have already started the season of entertaining friends. The Robert Scotts held an open house cocktail party at their home on Ravenscroft Sat. night. Friends from Royal Oak and other outlying areas as well as business acquaintances were among the 20 couples present.

Saturday night was also the evening for the Wesley Fellowship to hold their Box Social Christmas Party at the Palmer residence on Northwick. Proceeds from this affair went for the new Methodist church now under construction on Farmington Road.

SHERRI and LESLIE Highy with friends had a gay time at their home on Northwick, Tuesday. These girls made Christmas candles to share with their families.

Did you hear the lovely Christmas carols being sung at the Farmington Plaza last week? The group of patients were mighty proud of their daughters who belong to Brownie Troop 1059. These girls, along with others of the troop, headed by our own Marion Palmer, had a wonderful time adding to the Christmas spirit with their singing. They concluded their activities for the season after their caroling with a party at the Cocran home.

ON THE SICK list recently have been various members of the Jacek, McCloud, and Homer families. We hope everyone is feeling better.

Our prayers and best wishes go to Kay Norton's mother, ill in Ford hospital. Diane Reimer, 7 yr. old daughter of the Russell Reimers, spent a few days this week at the hospital for a check up.

Three candles were burning on the birthday cake for Stephen Kinley, Sunday. Here to help celebrate the day, was Mrs. Carlson, Steve's maternal grandmother from Granby, Conn.
