THE TEACHERS were the ones seated at the pupils' tables doing experiments last Friday. They were taking part in a special all-day science workshop at the Middlebelt School for Farmington School District elementary teachers and administrators. Looking on while a workshop instructor, Dr. Frank Youkstetter (left) makes a point about the experiment being done by teachers seated at the table (standing, left to right) are: Dr. Rose Lammel of Wayne State University, nationally known educator who spoke at the workshop; Miss Minnie Zielke, director of elementary education; and Dr. Walton E. Cole, a minister who resides in Farmington, who also spoke at the teachers' gathering. And, while the teachers were in school, the pupils were enjoying an extra day of vacation.

More Checks On Drivers by Dep't of State

More than fifty thousand erring drivers were called in for Driver Improvement interviews by safety experts of the Michigan Department of State during 1959.

The 50,503 cited drivers are a 16,274 increase above the 34,229 interviewed in 1958 and a 21,798 increase over the total number of errant drivers called in during 1957.

Secretary of State James Hare said, "By doubling the number of interviews above that of two years ago we have been able to re-educate a large number of drivers who might otherwise have caused an accident."

Under the present law Michigan drivers who have accumulated 12 violation points must appear for re-interviews to discuss with safety specialists their driving habits and their driving privilege, in some cases, motorists with extremely poor records and habitual record convictions are taken off the road for various periods of time as indicated by law.

During 1959, 15,601 were suspended, revoked, or had their license canceled.

The rest of the 50,503 drivers were given special instructions or were permitted to drive on restricted licenses. Among these were delivery truck operators who may have been permitted to drive their commercial vehicle during business hours only but were restricted from driving their passenger vehicles, essential factory employees who were allowed to drive to and from their places of employment but were restricted from other driving, or persons who because of physical conditions may, for example, have been permitted to drive during daylight hours only but restricted from driving at night.

Want Dresses Wrinkle Free

A new dress should have style and the fabric should feel good. That's what homemakers said in a recent survey, reports Bernetta Kahabka, clothing specialist at Michigan State University.

"Will it wrinkle?" is one big question that concerns a homemaker when she buys a new dress. She expects a more expensive dress to hold its shape better, last longer, and not wrinkle as much as a cheaper one. Better workmanship and style are associated with higher price.

When shopping for a street or work dress, the homemaker is practical. She wants to know how the garment will wash or clean and if it will shrink. For a party dress, however, color and style are first considerations.

The homemaker is generally pleased with the last dress she purchased no matter what the material or price. She has least fault to find with cotton, and votes it the most versatile fiber.

Clothing choices vary with the age of the homemaker and the money she has to spend. For instance, wool is more often chosen by the young woman with an above-average income. Rayon is preferred by the older woman with less money to spend. Cotton is widely used by all groups.

The younger, upper-income woman likes to wear skirts, slacks and shorts, so cotton housedresses are not important in her wardrobe.

Miss Kahabka says the homemaker is usually pleased with fabric quality she finds on the market if manufacturers would just solve the problem of wrinkles.

Antique Study Groups Planned

Mrs. Philip Day of Spring Brook was hostess on Wednesday to a group of women interested in organizing a chapter of the Questers Club.

The object of this club is to study antiques.

Those attending the initial meeting were Mrs. Joseph Updliger, Mrs. Joseph Hatfield, Mrs. Kenneth Trombley, Mrs. Max Hawkins, Mrs. Eaton Wade, Mrs. George Newman, Mrs. Robert Yuek, Mrs. Charles Lorion and Mrs. Eugene Brunk.

There seemed to be sufficient interest that both an evening and afternoon group could be formed. Mrs. Lawrence Brunk, president of the Sand Hill Questers and Mrs. Ernest Olt, president of the Cherry Hill Questers, were in attendance and talk of the activities of their groups.

There was a discussion regarding what to name this club as it must be from the history of Farmington. Mrs. Charles Lorion, whose hobby is studying the history of Farmington and who is responsible for the "Do You Remember" pictures which appear in the Enterprise, has volunteered her services in obtaining a few names to choose from.

Mrs. Eugene Brunk, GR. 6-1171, was elected temporary chairman. Anyone interested may contact her or any of the women that were at the meeting. The next meeting will be February 24, 12:30 p.m. at Mrs. George Newman's home, corner Power Road and Shiawassee.

At Home in Old Homestead

Jacqueline Davis
GR. 4-1230

A week ago yesterday was moving day for Thomas and Doretta Adcock. Their new home at 36555 Quakertown Lane was formerly the home of Don and Rose Amato. The Adcocks have three children, Larry 13, Dale 10, and Lynne 7. For the past two and a half years they have made their home in the City of Farmington so they are well acquainted with the local area.

Last Thursday Tim Quaine and his grandfather, Edward Roe of Detroit, shared a birthday dinner at the Quaine home. Mr. Roe's birthday was actually Wednesday while Tim's was on Friday so they celebrated together on the day between.

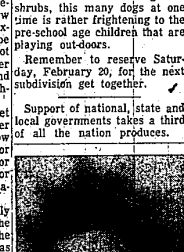
TWO WEEKS ago Ken and Carolyn Rowe returned from a trip to Florida. They along with their son, Jonathon, aged 18 months, visited Carolyn's mother, Mrs. Thomas Beggs, who is spending the winter at Marathon on Key Vaca.

Laurie Bohme celebrated her eleventh birthday on Saturday with the help of Leslie Raddatz, Kathleen Grimes of Detroit, and her brother Craig. The four of them spent the afternoon at Greenfield Village after being treated to lunch there. After dinner they returned to the Bohme home for cake and ice cream. Additional guests at the evening party were Laurie's grandmother, Mrs. Floyd Sharpley, and her Great-grandmother Mrs. Ella Steele.

ONCE AGAIN Old Homestead residents are requested to keep their dogs from roaming freely. Recently a pack of five or six dogs has been seen daily traveling through the subdivision. In addition to the damage to shrubs, this many dogs at one time is rather frightening to the pre-school age children that are playing out-doors.

Remember to reserve Saturday, February 20, for the next subdivision get together.

Support of national, state and local governments takes a third of all the nation produces.



Mr. and Mrs. Alvin B. Gazley of 31629 Shaw, Farmington, announce the engagement of their daughter, Betty Jane, to Robert G. Davies, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert J. Davies of 352 Central, Inkster. The wedding date has been set for June 11.

A costume skating party will be held this Friday evening for children in Staman Acres at the subdivision rink starting at 7:30 p.m. barring extremely unsuitable weather.

The other birthday was that of Bob Kemp. Bob celebrated his 11th birthday Sunday with his family and relatives.

THE SAINT ANTHONEY Guild of Our Lady of Sorrows met last week at the home of Lillian Bliski.

Last Saturday evening Jack and Zora Cross had Jane and Campbell Patterson, Joyce and Al Thompson, Catherine and Bob Williams and Florence and Clifford Bragg in for dinner and an evening of fun.
