FASCINATING FACTS ABOUT NATURAL GAS
"Natural" Nuisance
To early Americans, Natural GAS was merely a phenomena. They dedicated it as a shrine or left it burning for sightseers. After the discovery of oil, producers classified Natural GAS a nuisance and ignored it - another example of man's wastefulness due to ignorance.
Michigan Gas Storage Co. (a Consumers Power Co. subsidiary) has storage fields near Marlon, Michigan, where Natural GAS is put back in the earth under a pressure of hundreds of pounds per sq. in. and withdrawn as needed in winter when GAS consumption is highest.
GET THE FACTS - BETTER YET - GET GAS!
1960-60-61

"Rainy Day" Surplus
Today Natural GAS is carefully guarded against waste or loss. In the summer, surplus supplies from highly productive wells are stored in underground pools (depleted oil and gas fields) near points of mass consumption. This assures a dependable, adequate supply of miracle fuel for winter months.
