U of M Has Top Manuscript Collection

The University of Michigan's collection of papyrus manuscripts is by far the largest in the United States, according to Arthur E. R. Boak (Ph.D.), professor emeritus of history.

The collection of writings on paper made from the papyrus plant, although not as large as those of Oxford, London, Vienna, and Cairo.

The Michigan papyrus range in date from the earlier part of the third century B.C. to the eighth century A.D. The great majority of them are written in Greek, but there are considerable numbers in Latin, Coptic, Arabic, and a few in Egyptian Demotic (Simplified system of writing used after the sixth or seventh century B.C.).

They contain materials of all sorts: Biblical fragments, religious writings, public and private documents, private letters, astronomical, astrological, mathematical and magical texts.

Explaining how paper was made from the papyrus plant, Professor Boak says: "Narrow strips were cut from the pith of a reed of appropriate size. Then, while still fresh, a strip of these strips of like length and width were laid parallel to each other, with slight overlaps, on a wet table to form a mat of desired size.

A second similar mat was laid above the first with the upper strips at right angles to the lower. The two layers were then pressed together until firmly bonded into a single sheet. Dried and smoothed, the sheet was ready for use, and one could write on both sides of it. Protected from dampness, papyrus has lasted, in not a few cases, for well over 3,000 years.

In Greek and Roman times the ink used for writing on papyrus was made from lamp-black, gum arabic and water. If ink was desired, iron filings were added. Pens were hollow reeds, shaped and split like our quill pens, he explains.

Tony and Mary Jarvis of Leelanau recently enjoyed a wonderful visit from Tony's sister and her husband, Maureen and Ralph Rolfs, and their young son, Ralph, Jr. Tony hadn't seen his sister in 13 years! The Rolfs family, who calls England home, are presently taking a month's vacation following 20 months in Nigeria, Africa.

Ralph, who is attached to the Anglican Church, was hired by the Nigerian government for a 20 months' teaching tour to instruct the natives in English, music and Theology. The school is equivalent to our high school and many of the boys who would go on to the University.

Much of the week Ralph, Maureen and Ralph, Jr. were visiting at the Jarvis home was spent comparing notes on the many things that have happened over the years. Tony and Mary were particularly fascinated by the first-hand account of life in Africa. The Rolfs family, who live in Lagos, Nigeria, Ekita in the southern part of Nigeria which is surrounded by native cocoa and peanut farms.

THEY ARE never bothered by large animals such as lions and tigers but are troubled by army ants; scorpions and snakes. They have never seen a cobra but recently heard that one was killed recently. Their food consists mainly of curried dishes, a lot of fruits, and a little meat (sometimes fresh antelope where it is available). There is an electricity so kerosene lamps are used.

The temperature is extremely hot, especially between Christmas and the end of March. Although African women do all the work, no white woman does her own work - natives are hired to do the house tasks. Vegetation is abundant in the growing season. The tropical flowers are unbelievably beautiful and, when you plant radish seeds, three weeks later the radishes are on your table. There is also a dry period when dust is everywhere. During this time the winds are continuous, blowing sand all the way from the Sahara desert.

Mr. and Mrs. Rolfs recently spent some time in Lisbon, Portugal where their son was often snatched from their arms because the people were astounded to see such a fair-haired child. They traveled to the Azores Islands, New York, and then came to Michigan.

DURING THEIR stay here in Bel-Aire Tony and Mary attempted to show their visitors some of the local points of interest. They took a tour through the Ford plant; enjoyed a Shubert play; and toured the Detroit Historical Museum. They traveled in Canada and also around here to see the Michigan countryside. Ralph and Maureen were particularly impressed with the many suburban homes such as ours. The Rolfs and their young son now plan to spend some time in England before returning to Africa for another 20 months' teaching tour.

an enthusiastic stamp collector, was given an album for British America stamps. The women of the Auxiliary refused to put Grace on the "inactive list"; she was elected to serve as Secretary again!

George and Margaret Layne of Lamar would like to express their heartfelt thanks for the many prayers, kindnesses, cards, and help they received while Margaret spent 31 days in the hospital. "Everyone has been just wonderful," says Margaret, who returned home 2 weeks ago. Glad that Margaret is home again are her many friends and neighbors; particularly thankful that their Mommy is home are Jenneth, 8, and Darice, 6.

In the end, which is sometimes a long time in coming, all matters even out, and the truth always emerges.

And then we have no objection to the smiles of pretty young things, the innocent ones, of course.

Dickie Lou Market is open nightly until 12 and Sundays until 9 p.m.

In addition to her ring, Grace, were Agnes Stoddard, Mrs. Shaughnessy, Lila Drapinski, Sandy Nelson, Mary Atkinson, Doris Clingebarger, Birgitta Seiler, Angie Bailey, Jean Hix, Peg Fleming, and Peggy's sister, Pat Biesel, who demonstrated Peggy Newton costumes.

At the installation of new officers held April 24, Fred was awarded a past-commander ring and his officers gave him an engraved plaque. Grace, who was President of the Auxiliary, received a past-president ring. Customarily a pin is given to a past president but Grace had already received a pin for serving as Secretary for three years.

It was a card club night at Joyce Sutherland's Monday May 19. Getting together for a good time were Judy Johnson, Doris Engstrom, Betty Williams, Sherrie Hill and Virginia Siders.

THE TRUTH ABOUT EXTERIOR PAINT!

All exterior water soluble house paints, whether called Acrylic, Latex, silycone, or Polyvinyl must be treated the same way. THESE WATER SOLUABLE PAINTS MUST BE PRIMED! Whether painting new or old wood.

The primers used for exterior water soluble paints are completely different from any other type primers. If another type primer is used with water soluble paints, the job is chemically doomed to complete failure... with resulting peeling, blistering, etc.

For further information regarding water thinned or oil based house paints, or for information regarding any house paint problem, stop in for any assistance we can give. Of course, there is no obligation to buy.

YOU CAN CALK Cracks Between WOOD and BRICK

Is calking compound suitable for making permanent repairs where there are cracks between brick and wood and around basement windows?

Yes, experts say, it is excellent for filling spaces around the outside framework of windows and doors. It resembles putty, but does not become hard or brittle; instead, it remains flexible and does not dry out. It is best to force it in with a caulking gun.
