Report Activities of Miami Kiwanis Annual Conclave

Lloyd Smith, the Farmington delegate to the recent convention of Kiwanis International at Miami Beach, reported the highlights of the conclave to local members at Tuesday's regular meeting at Himmelspach's Dining Room.

Some 15,000 delegates from the United States and Canada attended the 45th annual convention, June 25-30, Smith said.

Among the outstanding speakers presented to the delegates were Paul G. Hoffman, managing director of the United Nations Special Fund to aid underdeveloped countries and George Romney, president of American Motors Corp.

In addition many talented young people from all over the country including bands, choirs, pianists and other varied entertainers, performed for the delegates between business sessions.

DIANE S. FRANJAC, 1956 graduate of Farmington High School, sang the Lord's Prayer at the opening Sunday evening session. Representing the state as the "Michigan Kiwanis Sweetheart of Song," Miss Franjac received many compliments on her fine soprano voice. She was a soloist with the Farmington High School Vocalists a year ago at the Dallas, Texas convention of Kiwanis International.

Neal Hale, Jr., of 34122 Cass Court, took the convention by storm with his pantomime artistry. Neal's father was a delegate from the Highland Park Club.

Highlights for the ladies attending the convention were a fashion show put on by Burdine's and a talk, "Dear Ab-eight international conventions, stated that he feels the conclave is very inspiring and informative as well as being entertaining for all members of the family. He hopes all Farmington members will visit Toronto next year for the 46th convention.

Be sure to drain at least five gallons of water from hot water heater at least once a month. It will extend the life of the heater, and avoid rusty water.

An easy way to keep a record is to cut out the first 12 days of a calendar. Tape this slip of paper to the heater. Then cross off the numbers for each month of the year.

Farmington Acres News

Marie J. Miller GR. 6-2099

Last week's column gave a complete rundown of the picnic activities but due to space limitations most of the details had to be cut out by the Enterprise so the belated story is as follows:

If anyone would like to know what a sunrise looks like, ask Barbara Blatz. Pooch Hase and Marie Miller. These screwballs rose at 4 a.m. and got to Kensington around 4:45 to hold the area where the picnic was held. Incidentally, everyone owes more than thanks to Pooch Hase for she was not on the committee but volunteered when no one else would take the job.

And without her we would never have gotten the sign up on the baseball screen. She climbs like a monkey—honest! Seriously, Pooch, thanks, thanks and more thanks for your help.

THEN, AFTER getting the signs up and stuff hauled out of the car and after lugging a few picnic tables around, Barbara left to pick up Jimmy Young, his boy friend whose name I cannot remember—after all, it was rather early, and Dave Bernier. Then Pooch and yours truly (with empty stomachs) sat on the swings, while neighboring acquaintances whom we tabbed "Granny and Pops" fried hun, eggs and what have you, letting the aroma float right into us. Well, we swang and we swung—till we were sick!

And then Elmer Blatz arrived, bringing the boys with him. These boys were wonderful—they took up where we left off—holding the area until the picnicers arrived God Jove them. They helped out during the whole affair. Thanks, fellows. And the picnicers started coming. We had a pretty good turn out and a real happy crowd. And now, for the races!

THE SACK RACE (Glenn's Downfall) Winners: Chuck Pell and Tom Mitchell.

Three Legged Race: Leo and Marie Miller.

Men's Shoe Kicking: contest: Elmer Blatz.

Ladies' Shoe Kicking: contest: Marie Miller.

Egg Throwing (What a mess!): First Egg: Broken: George and LaDonna Black. Winners: Dick and Senora Poirier.

The Wheel Barrel: Contest: Kathy Mitchell and her "wheel barrel" Mike?

There were other races, too, for children. But the winners look off so fast that we could not find out who they were! There was the balloon breaking contest, race for the pin wheels and a running backwards race. Also would like to mention that the men must have really been feeling their oats during the sack race. Bob Burrell did a double twist, head over heels somersault; that I don't think he will forget for a long time.

NOT BEING ABLE to get the complete list of donors, I shall print the remaining ones in the next column. They were as follows:

Our generous builder, Bert L. Smoker, donated $50 to the Special Activities Committee of the Farmington Acres Women's Club (who, incidentally, planned this whole affair). Thank you so very much, Mr. Smoker, for the check making us able to supply the children with pin-wheels, balloons, jump ropes, airplanes, and each family with beach balls and for some of the prizes.

Other donors were: Homestead House; Bradley Drugs; LaSalle Cadillac Wines; Hinkels; Farmington Pharmacy; Dan Lowe Hardware; Romanos Pizzeria; Ross Shoes; Roy P. Clifford; Salkowicz; Seelye Market; Cunninghams, and last but not least, a man who wishes to remain anonymous, for business purposes, sold us things in quantity at a huge discount, donating many things among which were the eggs for the egg throwing contest. Guess who?

ALL IN ALL, everyone enjoyed themselves—the men ending up in a baseball game with other picnicers from another area (and, by the way, winning), the women cleaning up the kids, packing up the junk, finding the kids, cleaning them up again. The kids—having a ball! Want it fun, though? Asking around Monday morning—how everyone enjoyed the picnic, I received the following reply: "Yawn!"
