ince more than a year ago and was instrumental in gaining support from the City Council and the Farmington School District Board of Education, has indicated it intends to follow through with its campaign.

The FARC proposal, placed on the April 1 ballot, with continued efforts to gain passage for the measure at the polls.

Jaycees have offered to provide service clubs and civic groups in the Township and City with information concerning the intents of the FARC program, its aims and purposes. Many organizations already contacted by the Jaycees are being sought out to help in promoting passage of the measure.

A Miss or Mrs. Queen of Hearts will be selected from those entering 20 years of age or older; a Miss Teen Queen of Hearts from those 16 through 19; and a Little Miss Queen of Hearts for those in the 9 through 15 age group.

Winners in the younger age group will get tickets to the Children's Vanguard Playhouse.

The selection of queens is being held in conjunction with the Plaza's Crazy Days sale which will be concluded at the close of this weekend.

Plaza Picking
Three Queens

Business establishments of the Farmington Plaza Shopping Center are now in the process of selecting "Queens of Hearts" in three different age divisions.

There is still time to enter, but the deadline is drawing near. All that you have to do is submit a photo of yourself and your name, address, telephone number and place of the stores in the Plaza but they must be turned in no later than 8:45 p.m. this coming Saturday, Feb. 16.

In addition to $75 in savings bonds to be given the winners there will also be tickets given for Valentine's Day and play tickets to see the Detroit Pistons basketball team in action.

Lion in Twp.

SHELLA HAS SINCE appeared twice on local television and has helped attract customers to store openings and businesses throughout the Metropolitan Detroit area.

Now she eats between eight and ten pounds of horse meat a day and Russell claims the public appearances defray the cost of feeding her.

"Sometimes they give her hamsters, which she loves, for real treat," says Russell. "She always eats well."

Russell is an entertainer presently working at Christoff's Steak House and Cocktail Lounge, 13736 Michigan Avenue in Dearborn. He also gives piano and organ lessons.

He no longer regards Sheila as being just a "novelty" but has given up attempting to keep the animal and has made up his mind to fight any attempt by the Township to have him get rid of her.

The one time Russell did attempt to sell the lion, the prospective buyer was bitten on the hand to abruptly end the deal. Since then, Russell has decided against trying to find a buyer.

THE FARMINGTON PLAYERS presentation of "Our Town" which opened last weekend and will have its final run Friday, Saturday and Sunday, February 13-14 and 15. Tickets for the last three nights of "Our Town" can be obtained at Wesley's House of Music in Downtown Farmington or at the Players' Barn on 12 Mile Road between Orchard Lake and Farmington Roads.

Strong Protest Voiced

IMMEDIATELY FOLLOWING Duke's presentation, single family residential property owners in this general area began firing with their objections.

Sylvester Tracy, acting as spokesman for homeowners in the Scenic View subdivision to the east, made the major presentation on behalf of objectors.

He presented a proposal to the proposed rezoning which was signed by 80 homeowners in his neighborhood and surrounding areas.

Some of the points made by Tracy in his presentation were:

1. A serious traffic problem already exists on Power Road between Grand River and Shady Wasse and cars coming and going from 50 apartments would make the matter very worse.

2. A serious sanitary sewer problem already exists in this area and apartments where proposed would cause more trouble in this regard.

3. Flooding at some times of the year is an annual problem for a few homeowners near the Shady branch in this area and the proposed rezoning of the apartments are proposed to cause water to spill out onto these apartment dwellers would offset any gains in tax money coming into the city.

Robert Chesley, a member of the city's economic development committee, spoke out against the rezoning, saying the city would have to provide for these apartment dwellers would offset any gains in tax money coming into the city.

4. Although no children are planned to be allowed in the apartments at this time, but growing young adults would be allowed to rent the apartments from allowing a family with a school age child or two from renting later.

5. There are already many areas in the city zoned for multiple family residential development and these areas should be built first before objectors' land is re-zoned for apartments.

GERALD GRACE, another resident in the area, strongly refuted Duke's figures on what refinements he would be derived by both the city and also by business establishments through additional sales of these apartments were allowed.

The Board again delayed action on the rezoning, but it was clear majority present at the hearing were strongly opposed to the development planned.

money outside this area and questioned whether most of the families would have this much space yearly anyway.

Grace also challenged other claims of financial benefit to the community which Duke in his presentation of the apartments would yield.

At least fifteen or more other citizens who spoke reiterated and elaborated on the statements made by Phemey and Grace.

W. BATES of Thomas St., a former City councilman, stated that the allowing of more and more apartments to be built in Farmington is creating a bad image of the community for outsiders who have expressed a desire to move here.

Board Again Delays Action

The Farmington Education Association has officially gone record as being in favor of the recommendation of the school district proposed by the school district's administrative staff to the Board of Education.

The administration proposes that mandatory retirement be required at age 63 and that the plan be made effective beginning in 1968. During the interim period, it is proposed that educators be allowed to continue working until they reach 70.

Despite the fact that this matter has been under study for some time and that administrators have expressed a desire to move here, the plan was drawn up, the Board voted again Monday night to delay action on adoption of this policy.

The sentiments of Board members on delaying the action was not unanimous, however. Trustees Herb Neal and George Nahlstedt voted against the motion.

To Review County
B. of E. Budgets Now

Vernon Fisher, Treasurer of the Farmington Board, was appointed by his fellow Board members Monday night to represent them on the special committee that will study and approve the Oakland County School Board's budget for the coming school year before it is submitted to the last allocation board for consideration.

New state legislation was adopted last year requiring that the county board's budget be approved by a special body made up of one representative from the Boards of each of the school districts in the county before being submitted to the allocation board, it was explained.

Named as Fisher's alternate was President Leland Clifford.

Novi Pupils

The acceptance of these outside pupils was made with the stipulation that the Novi District provide transportation for them at their own expense and that they agree to pay tuition $200 or more in advance for their pupils to the local district.

Supt. G. V. Harrison was questioned by one Board member as to whether or not the new students would be enough to cover added costs to the local district. Harrison said definitely that it would just about take operating costs but not required of bike owners.

He pointed out that while the local district had no legal obligation to accept these Novi youngsters he felt there was some moral obligation to help them. He said that whenever a clear need is shown and it is possible to do so.

The most informative meeting was followed by a social period.

Grant Request for Easement for Sewer

A request from the Oakland County Dept. of Public Works for an easement to run a sanitary sewer line across the Gill Road School property was approved by the Board of Education Monday night.

In approving the request the Board said that arrangements had been made so that the district would have to tie in the sewer line at a point most advantageous to the district.

The line for which the easement is being sought is the Tarabusi Sewer Arm.

Looking Over
School Sites

The site committee of the School Citizens Advisory Committee is now considering the purchase of still another new junior high site as well as one or two more elementary school sites in the Farmington School District.

Details with regard to general areas for these possible sites under consideration were outlined to the Board Monday night by Trustee Herb Neal who has been working closely with the site committee as the School Board's representative on it.

Property in the northwest section of the School District is being considered for the junior high site.

R. Goodwin Resigning
As School Principal

The resignation of Richard Goodwin as a principal at one of the elementary schools in the Farmington system was accepted with regret by the Board of Education at its regular meeting last night.

Goodwin will continue here for the remainder of the school year and then return to Michigan State University to do graduate work.

The Board also approved the recommendation of the administration in the appointment of five new teachers and the resignation of one other.

Appointed V.P. Of Traub Co.

William F. Roberts, 37, of said: "The appointment of Mr. 2337 Brandywine, was recently named the first vice president of the Traub Manufacturing Company.

His duties are to direct sales, advertising and public relations, and to implement the firm's sales expansion.

Roberts joined the 50 year old Traub Co. 13 years ago as a salesman in the Midwest. He was promoted to advertising and sales promotion manager in 1958.
