Better Buffer

During discussion on this matter which followed it was pointed out by councilmen that their past experience with greenbelts such as that being proposed had been very unsatisfactory and that these greenbelts always seemed to go unmaintained, grow up and become eyesores rather than beneficial. An even greater problem would be presented here since a high fence presently separates the residential property from easement, one councilman pointed out.

It was pointed out by the Council that they felt a better solution would be for the trees to be planted on the residents' side of the fence where they would be sure getting proper care and maintenance. The plant management might even be willing to stand some if not all of the cost for these trees if it was felt.

To assure safety from cars crashing through the fence, the Council suggested that the industrial firm be required to put bumper blocks along the fence line about five feet back from it to protect against cars crashing into it.

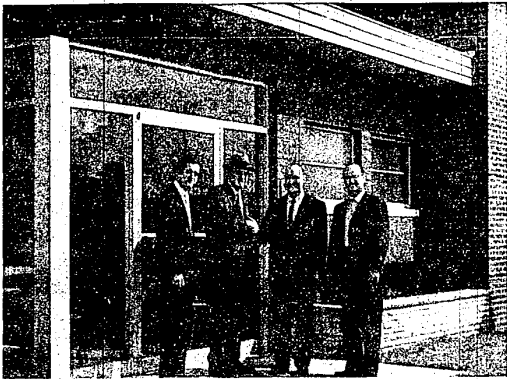

Also pointed out during discussion was the fact that homeowners on Meadowlark were aware of the fact that industrially zoned property abutted theirs at the time they bought their homes and that the plant is located the prescribed distance from the property line under city code. About three years ago residents on Meadowlark were given a lower assessment valuation on their property than other's owning homes in the same price range in that subdivision because their property did not abut industrial zoned land. City Manager John Dinan pointed out.

The final decision of the Council was to have the city manager meet with the Chesley Industries' management to discuss the matter in detail and see how far they would be willing to cooperate with the wishes of their residential neighbors to the north. Councilmen indicated that they felt confident they would be willing to go along with any reasonable requests.

Youth Guidance Council Supports Delos Hamlin Report Given

A detailed annual report from the Citizens' Youth Guidance Committee of Greater Farmington was turned over to members of the City Council Monday night for study.

The committee which works with youth problem cases in both the city and township has been operating now for three or more years with most of the work being done on a voluntary basis. The city and township appropriate a small amount each year to take care of expenses for facilities to operate from and necessary operation expenses.

The final decision of the Council was to have the city manager meet with the Chesley Industries' management to discuss the matter in detail and see how far they would be willing to cooperate with the wishes of their residential neighbors to the north. Councilmen indicated that they felt confident they would be willing to go along with any reasonable requests.

New Hospital

On March 13, Federal aid in the amount of $1,122,585 was granted to the new hospital through the Hill-Burton hospital construction program. The balance of the $3.5 million construction cost will be provided through mortgage funds, hospital operating funds and loans from staff physicians.

Smith, Hinchman and Grylls, of Detroit, are the architects. TUD PARENT hospital, Ziegler Osteopathic, which will continue to serve Detroit's populous north-west side, was founded in 1944 and has expanded five times. The most recent enlargement was completed last November. Current bed total is 165, with 108 doctors on the staff.

Its operation is directed by a seven-man board of directors headed by former-Gov. Van Wagener.

Other board members are Robert C. Surridge, attorney; Joseph Schoonitz, president of both W. D. Gale, Inc., electrical contractors, and the Rosenthal; Hobart Taylor, former assistant Wayne County prosecutor now serving as chief counsel for the President's Commission for Equal Employment Opportunity; Dr. Ellis Siefer, chairman of Ziegler Hospital's department of surgery; Bert Livo, a retired National Bank of Detroit executive, and Dr. Allen Ziegler, the hospital's founder and medical director. Construction will require approximately 16 months.

Mother of Five Killed by Car Two Variances in Zoning OK'd By Zoning Board of Appeals

Farmington Township Police recorded their second pedestrian traffic fatality of 1963 this week when Mrs. Rose Ann Burnham, 44, of 28300 Shawwassee in Farmington, was killed Thursday evening, March 14.

Mrs. Burnham was struck by a car driven by Charles N. Trotter, 57, of Detroit, who was going east on Shawwassee towards Whittington Street and did not see the woman until it was too late to avoid hitting her.

MRS. BURNHAM had four children living at home and one married daughter, Mrs. Rose Ann Burnham, who lives with her husband, Edward M. Burnham, are Mary Ann, Thomas, Richard and James. She also leaves two sisters, Mrs. Elizabeth Glowka of Farmington and Mrs. Margaret Fisher of Redford; and one brother, Hugh Rosayne of Walled Lake.

A Rosary Service was conducted at 8 p.m. Sunday in the Spencer J. Heeny Funeral Home. The funeral was Monday, March 18, at St. Alexander's Church, 27825 Shawwassee in Farmington, with burial in Holy Sepulchre Cemetery in Southfield.

Action of the Zoning Board of Appeals at its meeting earlier this month in granting two variances on commercial building projects proposed were reported to the City Council at its regular meeting Monday night.

One was a variance requested by Virgil Corrovel for reduced minimum side yard restrictions on a unit of efficient apartments he is going to build on Grand River Avenue next to the Farmington Professional Building. His request was for permission to locate the building less than 10 feet from one side yard line to permit a greater amount of space for ingress and egress of cars on the other side.

It was determined that enough space would still be allowed for needed light and air and that since the work on the narrow side of the building he plans would be fireproof a variance should be allowed.

The other request for a variance was from Dr. Jack Hirschman who plans an addition to his veterinary hospital on Moores St. next to the Farmington Plaza Shopping Center. His request was for permission to use some land in front of a house provide graduate study in general school teachers subjects
