Optimist Club To Sponsor Gun Safety Program

The Farmington Optimist Club is cooperating with the Farmington Junior High School and John Griffin of the National Rifle Association to present a gun safety program for all boys in the Farmington area on Thursday night, October 10, at the Junior High School on Thomas Street, from 7 p.m. until 9 p.m.

Mr. Griffin, a field representative with the NRA, and principal of the Farmington Junior High School, Robert Murray, were guests of the Farmington Optimist Club Tuesday evening, September 17, when the planning of the program was finalized.

FARMINGTON OPTIMIST CLUB boys' work chairman Bob Norton has been working with Mr. Griffin and Mr. Murray in setting up the program which has been highly successful and well received in other communities. The faculty representative of the Farmington Junior High Gun Club, Jack Cyr, tells the October 10 program will provide boys with an opportunity to become familiar with the proper handling of firearms and teach safety and respect for weapons. His plan is to provide members with a field trip this year where boys can experience the use of firearms under close supervision.

MR. GRIFFIN will discuss the proper handling of weapons using his extensive collection of firearms showing the history of now various guns evolved. A field stripping demonstration will also be given at the Gun Safety Program.

At one of Mr. Griffin's recent programs staged in Wixom, Michigan several thousand boys had to be turned away because they could not be accommodated. The response to this type of program has been characteristically enthusiastic all over the country and it is the first time such a program has been put on in Farmington by the National Rifle Assn.

Primitive Art At Oakland U. Thru October

An outstanding collection of rare masterpieces of Primitive Art is on display at Oakland University's Art Gallery during the month of October. The exhibit will be officially opened with an address by G. Mennen Williams, Assistant Secretary of State for African Affairs, on Friday, October 11, at 8 p.m.

This exhibit, limited to coincide with the Detroit Institute of Art's exhibit on African Art, is a major event of the second annual Symposium on the Arts—the theme of which is "Primitive and Contemporary Arts."

THE OAKLAND UNIVERSITY Primitive Art exhibit will feature African, Oceanic and American Indian pieces, almost none of which has been seen in Michigan before. Sources for the exhibit are varied. The Museum of Primitive Art in New York will send about twenty pieces including works from Africa, the Congo, Mali, Senegal, from the South Pacific including several items from the ASMAT region, or Melanesia, where Governor Rockefeller's son was lost; and some North American Indian pieces.

About fifteen pieces will be loaned by former Governor and Mrs. Williams. He has become an active collector of Primitive Art and has purchased almost all of these pieces during his recent visits into various parts of Africa. Other loans for the exhibit will be non-African pieces from the Detroit Institute of Arts and works from the collection of Professor Harry Borden, distinguished Primitive Art authority at New York U.

ALMOST ALL of the works in the exhibit will be in sculpture, most of them in wood, some in bronze, some combinations of brass or bronze over wooden frames.

Because the field of Primitive Art is currently one of extreme interest to both scholars and the gallery-going public, the Oakland exhibit will be both timely and exciting. According to Dr. John Gallaway, chairman of Oakland's Art department and coordinator of the exhibit, the forthcoming Primitive Art exhibit at Oakland University is likely to be for its size, one of the finest collections of art on primitive peoples ever seen in Michigan.

Consumers Power Co. Pays Out Gas Bill Refund of $2,400,000

"Gas customers of Consumers Power Company this month are receiving gas service bills from the Company reflecting their share of a refund which totals $2,400,000.

"The refund recently was made to Consumers by its Pipeline Gas Suppliers."

"CUSTOMERS WILL find an average of $3.70 deducted from their bills if they are gas space heating customers. If they use gas for such things as water and water heating purposes, the average deduction from current bills will be about 70 cents, the Company said.

"Commercial and industrial customers of the Company will be refunded varying amounts according to the amounts of gas used in the three-month period March-May of this year, the period on which the amount of the refund is based."

"GAS CUSTOMERS on the Company's line August 27 who moved after the March-May billing period will have to apply for their refund at their nearest Consumers Office before December 31, 1963.

"A very small number of customers in all classifications, and customers who only began to use the Company's gas service after August 27 of this year, will receive no refund. In most cases, this will be because their monthly gas bill is smaller than the refundable amount."
