Farmington Players In Rehearsal for 'Rain'

"Rain," the dramatic smash hit that has been played on Broadway stages more than 700 times and which toured throughout the country for four years, has been announced as the next attraction of the Farmington Players, and will open a five-night engagement at the Barn starting February 7.

This is the John Colton-Clemence Randolph dramatization of the famous story by W. Somerset Maugham about an easy-going girl, wanted by the law in San Francisco, who comes to grips with a fanatic missionary on a sleepy island in the South Seas.

SADIE THOMPSON, the lady heroine of "Rain," is a hapless product of a Kansas farm and the cabaret of Honolulu and the Barbary Coast. On route from her rudely past to a virtuous job on another of the islands, Sadie is held in quarantine in the port of Pago Pago for several days when cholera is discovered aboard the schooner on which she plans to transfer. The torrential downpour of the rainy season just about to set in south of the equator.

Also, of the ship, "Ordina," is an honest, but cruel, missionary, Rev. Davidson, who is usually concerned with the woe of the natives, and in getting the native women into Mother Shewards, the Davidson's daughter, become obsessed with the idea of getting Sadie deported to San Francisco. The missionary, who has no mercy for a sinners, feels that Sadie has become too friendly with the Marines stationed at Pago Pago, and his determination to punish the sinner's girl is strengthened when she curses him in a picturesque argot.

DAVIDSON has learned that a prison sentence awaits Sadie's father, and he feels that she had been "framed" for a crime she did not commit. Gradually, the holy man breaks down, the girl's spirit and conviction, only to disillusion her finally by demonstrating that he is all too human himself.

The Farmington Players' production of "Rain" will open here at the Barn, February 7 and 8 and continue February 14, 15 and 16.

Information concerning sale of tickets can be obtained by calling Mr. George Mullin, ticket chairman (GR. 4-2873).

On January 18 at 8 p.m. the Players will hold their monthly meeting. Those who are interested are welcome to join them at the Barn. Coffee and dessert will be served following a program featuring scenes from our forthcoming production "Rain," directed by Hope Nahstoll.
