Get Prices on Elks, City Bldgs

A report was made to the city council Monday night by Manager John Dima on the values placed on the old Elks Temple building and the vacant City Hall building. The Elks Club property at $19,800 and the City Hall at $18,000.

Discussions are now being conducted between Elks City officials and officials of the city on some possible arrangements that might be worked out for a swap of these two pieces of property with some other considerations also being made.

"SAFETY FACTORS are taken into consideration by the board in the location of new schools and we will be planning new schools," he said. He further emphasized a will be all governmental agencies to improve safety conditions.

A question as to whether lower speed limits, if they were approved, would be adequately raised, considerable controversy at the meeting.

It was the contention of several residents that drivers would generally abide by whatever speed limit was established for a given area while one state police spokesman, Corp. Simoneau, maintained his case of the drivers would travel at a speed they thought to be reasonably safe according to the conditions and character of the area.

ENFORCEMENT of a new speed limit, it was further pointed out by Corp. Simoneau, required an adequate police force which he feels the township at the present time does not have although they have a mileage question due to the purpose of remedying this situation.

Corp. Simoneau reported on a recent study made of how a policeman's time is allocated over an eight-hour day. The study revealed, he said, that three hours time is devoted to matters related to criminal enforcement, three hours spent handling complaints from citizens and only two hours devoted to traffic enforcement.

Township Supervisor Curtis Hall brought out during the course of the meeting that should township voters approve the 2 mill tax proposal on May 18 which is aimed at providing adequate police and fire protection that an additional seven Deny Request (Continued from Page 1A) One of these objections is that it is a duplication of the efforts in this health education area which is being conducted by the Michigan Cancer Foundation. Another is that the American Cancer Society does not render any substantial amount of service in the cancer fighting area directly to Farmington. The third is that the American Cancer Society has stepped out of the United Fund "Give One for All" program and it has shown lack of cooperation with this area in its planned program for fund raising.

Book pointed out during his presentation to the Council that there were some 320 Farmington City and Township volunteers all ready to make the door-to-door canvass on Wednesday evening, April 1. He emphasized the fact that equally as much effort was put forth during this once a year door-to-door calling on educating people about cancer's seven danger signals as there was in soliciting contributions.

Traffic Safety Meeting

(Continued from Page 1A) officers could be added to the township police force. It is promised that with the seven additional officers at least two patrol cars could be assigned to the township. It was also promised during each eight-hour shift.

AT THE PRESENT TIME only two or three township police officers are on the road at any one time and they must divide their attention to all matters which are likely to arise throughout the township. It was pointed out by Hall that the department from the Oakland County Sheriff's Office "was limited due to the lack of sufficient manpower in that law enforcement body."

"ADEQUATE TRAFFIC CONTROL," Hall said, "will be a great step forward in diminishing traffic accidents." Unless provisions are made for the enforcement of speed limits should they be lowered, it was the opinion of the principal speakers that lower speed limits would not be practical.

Corporal Simoneau reported that 1,882 persons lost their lives on Michigan's highways last year while only 400 were killed in violation of criminal laws. He said if the figures were to ever be reversed that citizens would miss up in arms and demand action.

Those present at Tuesday night's meeting indicated by their many questions and often times heated statements that they were ready to take whatever steps were required of them to reach a satisfactory solution to the community's highway traffic safety problems.

STEPS THAT ARE being taken by the township board to prevent the occurrence of urban problems were outlined by board trustee Earl Oberbauer. He mentioned the board's proposed ordinance to control ingress and egress routes to future business places or at churches or other centers which attract heavy volumes of traffic. The proposed ordinance would also regulate existing centers under any future expansion.

Trustee Byron Walter who started early in the meeting regarding the problem of getting a response to local traffic problems that "somebody isn't getting the message," appeared satisfied at the meeting's conclusion that steps were under way to improve conditions. Key spokesmen for the residents adopted a "wait and see" attitude.

Tax Payments
 quency in its tax payments is in fairly good shape. Any property owners who did not get their tax bills paid prior to last Saturday will now have to pay the balance of one per cent from the local treasurer's office and then go to the county treasurer's office in Pontiac to make payment.

In addition to the four per cent penalty assessed locally applied against bills not paid prior to January 20 but before the end of February an additional one per cent will also be added for each month that payment is delinquent past February 29.

Delinquent taxes on property not paid by the end of February results in the automatic placement of this property up for back tax sale to the general public.
