

Back-to-School Shopping Time Keeps Farmington Stores Busy

TOM SEEKAY of Town Toggery Men's Shop in the Farmington Center is pictured above (left) showing Bruce Porter of 3160 Myra Street in Livonia a pair of slacks which Bruce needs for high school. Town Toggery was one of the busy places over the weekend as shoppers picked up clothes for this week's school opening.

STAN KIRSCH of Fashion Shoes in the Downtown Farmington Shopping Center temporarily lost the attention of young Paul Cameron as Enterprise photographer Ralph Evert snapped the above picture last Saturday. That's Billy Cameron looking on as his brother gets fitted with a new pair of back-to-school shoes. The Camerons, who live at 20551 Salem Street in Detroit, come to Farmington to have their shoes fitted.

THE KRESGE'S STORE in the Farmington Plaza Shopping Center was a busy place last Saturday and Manager Ernest Reed (right) pitched in to help one of the clerks, Marge Groth, take care of the customers. Mrs. Lita Duncan of 3370 Harlan Drive in Farmington receives the attention of Mr. Reed above, as her purchases were neatly packaged at the check-out counter.

Farmington Acres News

BETTY WILLARD 476-3863

Last Saturday night the Farmington Acres Homeowners' Association had an adult picnic at the "Magic Square" back of Flanders School. The attendance wasn't large but those persons attending had a wonderful time. The association hopes that next year more people will be able to take advantage of our civic and social events. The $5 charge for the picnic was not only paid for the food, the renting of tables and lights for the dance but also helped defray expenses for the prizes and prizes for the children's "Gala Day."

The Association would like to inform the homeowners that a lawyer was retained to prevent the employees of the industrial area, back of Meadowlark, from parking within fifteen feet of their fence and property line. They are now trying to erect a green belt between the homes on Meadowlark, Meadowlark Court and the industrial area.
