

CORRESPONDENCE

Northville.

Mrs. B. Hewitt, who had been the guest of Mrs. F. S. Harmon, departed Saturday for her home at Maple Rapids.

Mrs. Ida Joslin entertained Mr. and Mrs. Weist of Detroit from Thursday until Monday.

Mrs. L. W. Simmons is in Ann Arbor, where she underwent an operation on her eyes for the removal of cataracts.

Mr. and Mrs. Clay Pepper and son, Wyland, returned home Monday from a visit to St. John and other places.

There was a large attendance at the Methodist church Sunday when the new Epworth League piano was dedicated.

Dr. Paul Alexander and Miss Mary Kunkle were married in Ypsilanti Monday. The bride has for a number of years been employed in the office of the Stimpson scale factory, and is popular in Northville society.

Dr. Alexander has a fine dental practice here and they will make Northville their home.

Northville Commandery went to Flint Tuesday to attend the meeting of the Grand Commandery.

Mrs. E. W. Balch and son, Louis, and daughter, Iris, were week-end visitors at the home of G. W. Gillis.

Mr. Moss, father of Mrs. F. D. Eatherly, passed away at his daughter's home here Tuesday. The remains will be taken to New York for burial.

Mr. Eatherly, whose health has been poor for a long time, is confined to his bed, having recently suffered a hemorrhage of the lungs.

Mrs. Catherine Fuller was brought here from Wixom Wednesday to the home of her daughter, Mrs. Andrew Harmon. Mrs. Fuller is almost entirely helpless since a fall she had some time ago.

Base Line

Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Simmons were Clarenceville callers Tuesday.

Mrs. J. Greer and daughters, Mabel and Myrtle, spent Decoration day with Mr. and Mrs. John Ticker in Detroit.

Will Greer was in Pontiac Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Gus Schoof entertained Mr. and Mrs. John Smith of West Farmington Sunday.

E. Simmons has just had his house reshingled. The Hicks boys did the work.

George, Rear is in Canada staying at the home of his son-in-law, who is very sick with pneumonia.

E. J. Simmons lost a good horse last Saturday.

Gus Schoof has had fence builders this week.

Ed. O'Brien from Detroit was a caller in this vicinity Saturday.

Conroy's Corner

Miss Lorraine Conroy spent a couple of days the past week with relatives at Wayne.

Mr. and Mrs. Tom Densmore entertained a party of relatives from Detroit Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Perry of Detroit were guests on Saturday and Sunday of their daughter, Mrs. Omer Conroy. They departed Sunday afternoon for Lansing, where Mr. Perry is employed in secretary of state's office.

Mr. and Mrs. Scheel and daughter of Redford spent Friday with Mrs. Frank Shear. On Sunday Mrs. Fred Shear and her son and wife were entertained at the Shear home here.

Mr. and Mrs. Obrowski entertained about fifty relatives and friends Sunday, the occasion being the confirmation of their youngest daughter.

The Mystic Workers of East Farmington will hold their June meeting at the home of Mrs. Jane Holdershaw June 13 for supper.

This is their annual meeting and election of officers for the ensuing year. All members are requested to be present. Everybody cordially invited.

Redford

Cass Bachman is building a new house on the Miller subdivision.

Joseph Dallavo has purchased two lots on McIntyre avenue and three on Fairview. Besides building a home for himself he will like to build a house or two for sale.

The lots were sold by Mr. Knowles. A large number of Redford people went to Northville last Friday to help our sister town celebrate.

The boys are in the frog spearing business just now.

Regular meeting of Victoria chapter, No. 290, Thursday evening, June 12, at 7:30.

A large crowd was out to the alumni banquet held in the Masonic hall Monday evening and many old time acquaintances were renewed.

Old schoolmates met who had not seen each other for years and the reminiscences of old times were a pleasant part of the evening's entertainment.

The Redford ball team met disaster twice last week. On Friday they went to Northville and although they put up a fine game they were finally beaten in the ninth inning, after having led their opponents all through the game.

Nevertheless it was a good exhibition on both sides and a game well worth seeing.

On Saturday the Studebakers came out with a good fast bunch of players to back up their ex-leaguer, Eddie Kilian, the old Tiger pitcher.

Lew Andrews went into the box for the home team and allowed the visitors to run in seven scores in the first three innings thereby cinching the game.

Andrews pitched three more innings in better form and then Clarence Hutchins went on the mound.

The Studebakers only got one score after the third inning, but the locals were only able to circle the diamond four times, making the score 8 to 4.

Judge Hanks of Duluth was a visitor in Redford one day last week. He was called to Birmingham to attend the funeral of his mother, Mrs. Comfort Dent Hanks, widow of the late Thomas Hanks.

She was 95 years of age at the time of her death. With her husband, who died in 1904, they moved to Redford about the year 1860 and engaged in farming. They were well known to the older residents of the township.

They moved from Redford to Birmingham in 1874. There are four children surviving, George, Charles, James and Hattie.

The game of ball that was played on Monday afternoon between the "Hustlers" and the business men created a lot of amusement and should have terminated differently.

The school boys really should have won the contest for they had the crowd, the umpire and the scorekeeper on their side.

There were some very good feature plays made by the Hustlers and some remarkably awkward stunts by the creatures that misrepresent the business men.

The umpiring by Dr. Holcomb was decidedly refreshing. It was so out of the ordinary. However, he was a real Gibraltar when once a decision was made and no amount of bludgeoning could stir him from the path of duty as he saw it.

Hawthorn essayed to pitch the first few innings and then Lahser tried this hand, but when his own kid lifted a three-bagger out into left field the starch was all out of him and Dr. Tupper took his place.

Whoever told those fellows that they could pitch has got something to answer for in the hereafter.

The score was 12 to 11, many lucky things having happened to give the big fellows the advantage in the scoring.

The Baptist church in the village is receiving a fresh coat of paint at the hands of Chas. Philbrick.

Arthur Cabbie is now working at the carpenter trade with Frank Lee.

That ancient old play, "Uncle Tom's Cabin" is still traveling about the country and Redford is to have it in a few days. It is a tent affair.

Many inquiries have been made regarding the prospect for another Come-All-Ye this summer and the Record feels safe in saying that there will certainly be one this year and probably every year for some time to come.

Last year's affair for the first one was a boundinger and there is no reason why we should not continue a good thing indefinitely.

A meeting will probably be held soon to start the ball a-rolling.

All of the members of the common council were present at the June meeting, which was held Tuesday night.

One of the things that came before the meeting was the matter of supplying a member of the board of review to fill the vacancy that existed on account of the failure of Emmet Coleman to qualify for the position.

Mr. Coleman was elected against his wishes and refused to be sworn in as he did not want to serve in that capacity.

Blake Northrop was nominated by President Burgess to fill the vacancy and the council promptly and unanimously confirmed the appointment.

The question of sidewalks for the season was taken up and discussed and the matter, by vote of the council, was referred to a committee on sidewalks.

We learn that a sidewalk to the school house is seriously contemplated.

The bill of the street commissioner for $25.22 was allowed and his monthly report accepted.

Although no official action was taken some discussion relative to sewer connections was had and it is expected that an ordinance covering the question will be adopted, that will compel the use of cess-pools for all private sewers and that it will do away with the obnoxious conditions that now exist in some places.

The matter of a system of water-works for the village came up and received considerable attention from the trustees.

Mr. Dillon, who represented the company which put in the Farmington plant last year, was in the village and met with the council. He gave them much information relative to the necessary proceedings to take and will meet with them again some day next week when he will have a more complete plan worked out and can then also make a more exhaustive estimate of the expense and cost of the system.

Sunday morning Barney Ash succumbed to that dread disease, diphtheria, and passed away after an illness of a week or two.

The burial was made on Tuesday in Grand Lawn, the nature of the disease preventing an attendance at the funeral and burial of any but relatives.

Revs. Evans of Redford and Staige of Farmington conducted the services and the funeral arrangement were in charge of R. B. Northrup.

A sorrowing wife is left, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herman Groth.

Mr. and Mrs. Ash had been married only a year and were just completing a new home on North Lahser avenue which they expected to soon occupy.

The wife and relatives have the sympathy of a large number of friends.

NO PUZZLE TO THE MARRIED

Benedict Could Quickly Answer Question Which Appears to Worry High Judicial Tribunal.

Is a wife a "family?" Married men laughed right out loud when they learned that the court of appeals has been asked to answer this question, the lower courts being unable to agree in the matter. That the valuable time of the highest tribunal in the state should be taken up with a question which any benedict could answer with his eyes shut and both hands tied behind his back has provided no end of merriment for the matrimonial captives.

"The wife is always the family," said one married martyr. "When there are no children she is the head of the family. If the judges of the court of appeals doubt whether one woman can constitute a family I'll send them a few assorted Christmas bills. They'll be convinced that my wife is a colony. If they wanted to give the court some real work why didn't they try to find out what part of the family the husband is?"

HARD PART.

Patient—Better give me the gas now.
Dentist—But the tooth is out.
Patient—I know, but I've got to say you now.

CHEVALIER AND KAISER.

The Chevalier Boni is engaged in exploring the foundations of the palace of the Caesars. He is considered somewhat "smooth." Some time ago the emperor of Germany, who prides himself on his archeology as on his paintings, music and theology, devoted one of his journeys to a visit to the excavations in the Forum. Pictax in hand, M. Boni attended him. He gave the utensil to William II, and pointing out a place in the ground, said: "If your majesty will deign to scratch here I have hope of something." The emperor scratched and under the pickaxe immediately discovered an inscription to the glory of Caesar, which the Chevalier Boni deciphered without looking at it. He had buried it there the evening before—Le Cri de Paris.

MAN ON SUBJECT OF SKIRTS.

In the Women's Home Companion a man giving his impression of some of the present feminine fashions writes in part:

"If the law decreed that woman should be compelled to wear the fashionable skirt of today as a punishment, the whole world would rise against the barbaric cruelty of it. Leg chankers are an unspeakable relic of dark ages; but make the anklets and chain of gold instead of iron and the shackle becomes an ornament; let them become fashionable and they become almost universal among women. Not only will the feminine adept herself walk in them gracefully, just as she does in the same-gaiting skirt. It is a manifestation of what Arthur calls their 'dramatic sense for striking effect.'"

PRETTY ENGAGEMENT GIFT.

A very pretty engagement gift is a stack of sachets made of satin ribbon two inches wide. The sachets are cut in squares, padded, sprinkled with sachet and the edges overcast. A dozen of these are stacked one on top of the other, tied together with a baby ribbon like a package and the bow on top finished with a tiny bunch of five roses. The recipient of the gift unties the sachets and scatters them among her clothes.

Leaves for these roses may be made from a piece of green satin ribbon two inches long and a half inch wide. The raw edges are gathered and the ribbon folded twice, so that the completed leaf is a triangle gathered on one side. A little experimenting will soon teach you the knack—Woman's World.

SHONE IN REFLECTED LIGHT

Mr. Spinks' Only Claim to Fame Was in His Possession of a Brilliant Better Half.

Little Mr. Spinks was an excellent man of business, and fairly prosperous in a modest way, but he lacked the artistic talents.

His better-half, on the other hand, was well known among a certain literary and artistic set as being a remarkably brilliant woman, and one with great powers of entertaining.

It chanced that both Mr. and Mrs. Spinks were inadvertently asked to a large party together—a Bohemian gathering, which was not quite in the little man's line.

During the course of the evening his wife sang, and the richness of her voice attracted a well-known man who happened to be present.

He asked to be introduced to her. This was done by the hostess, but in about five minutes after effecting the introduction she hurried up, and carried Mrs. Spinks off again, telling the discomfited stranger that he mustn't monopolize the celebrated woman.

"But I'll introduce you to Mr. Spinks," she added, by way of consolation.

"Mr. Spinks!" ejaculated the great one. "Never heard of him. He's a stranger, isn't he? What's he famous for?"

"Er—well, his wife!"—Echoboth Sunday Herald.

FAR, FAR AWAY

Novelist—I'm looking for an honest lawyer.
Humorist—Then keep on traveling to the Never, Never Land.

COMEDIAN'S JOKE.

Of the jealousies of the stage Mme. Judith, in her "Recollections," gives many instances, but also of its good-humored nonsense. The comedian Boffe, it appears, was fond of displaying his versatility in the street. On one occasion he said, "You just wait a minute, Judith, and I'll make you laugh." He went and to the edge of the pavement, and with bent back, hunched up shoulders, pinched features, head shaking pitceously, and tottering gait, he suddenly became an old man. Thus metamorphosed, he tapped on the pavement with his stick, tottered to the edge of the road, made a few trembling steps to cross it, and then, seeing a carriage coming, started back and feebly endeavored to step onto the curbstone again. Finally, when a little work girl compassionately helped him, remarking, "Poor old fellow, your dancing days are a long way off," Boffe of a sudden turned head over heels, "after which he proned several times, made his assistant a low bow, and left her simply petrified with astonishment."

MR. TINKERS COLLAPSE.

"Is this Mr. Tinkers?"
"Yes, sir. What can I do for you?"
"I wish to speak to you about a delicate matter."
"Is that so? Well, speak softly and my assistant will not hear you."
"To tell the truth, I think the hairspring of my watch is broken."

CHOIRS INVINCIBLE.

She (whispering in church)—Listen. Isn't it ridiculous? The choir is chanting, "Shall We Know One Another Over There?"
He—What's funny about that?
She—They are all so jealous of one another that even the pastor can't bring them to speaking terms.

VERY LIKELY.

Mr. Bacon—I see it is stated that oxygen is sixteen times as heavy as hydrogen.
Mrs. Bacon—Yes, and I know men who, if they went out with their wives shopping, would let their wives carry home the oxygen while they bring along the hydrogen.
