Business Men of Country Should Be Given Banking and Currency Sys-tem Which Will Make Possible Individual Initiation.

Washington, June 23.—The following is President Wilson's message to congress on the subject of currency reform:

reform:

Art. Speaker, Mr. President, Geutieman of the Congress: it is under the compution of what. It is under the compution of what. It is under the compution of what was the present of the compution of what was the present of the computing the present of the computing the present of the computing the present of the committee rooms is likely to become a burden as the season lengthers, and that every consideration of personal complete, breaks, in the case of some of us, considerations of personal sion of the debars of the computing the compu the instrumentanties and conveniences of free enterprise which independent men need when acting on their own lutitative.

It is not enough to strike the shackies from business. The duty of astronomental the shackies from business. The duty of all constructive also. We must show that we understand what business needs and that we know how to supply it. No man, however casual and superficial his observation of the conditions now prevailing in the country, can fall to see that one of the chief things business. needs now, and vill need increasingly as it gains in some ditton in the very moments by which or aduly to stallize its credit. On the stalling in the seed of the business of the shadow of the conditions of the stalling in the seed of the business of the stalling of the stalling in the seed of the business community unless we show that we found it?
