Public Letterbox

Sir:
I heard an announcement on the news two days ago which is prompting me to write this letter. Many families are in the process of making up Christmas packages to send to relatives and servicemen here in the States as well as overseas. I had an experience last year which taught me a lesson and trick of sending parcels which I would like to pass on for it might help someone else who has never heard of it either.

Last year I thought I'd outsmart the Post Office so I sent my Christmas package to my eldest brother who lives in California prior to Thanksgiving. I thought I'd get it to them prior to the annual crush of mail and packages which deluge the poor Post Office each year. I'm sorry to say instead of doing the outsmarting—I was the one who got outsmarted. My package was full of glass jars which I thought were well packed. My brother called me up immediately upon receiving it to tell me all they received was a completely soggy box full of broken bits of jars, pickles and sticky packing.

TO PROVE THAT "big brother" knows best and to rub a little salt into the wound, good-naturedly of course, my brother during the height of the rush period just a few days prior to Christmas sent me a glass hurricane lamp. He packed it in popcorn and there wasn't a chip or scratch anywhere on it. Popcorn is light weight and absorbs shocks real well and is cheap also.
