the state equalizing factor for the area in which you live and then multiply by the tax rate per thousand dollars.

Q: What will the bond issue provide?

A: School buildings and sites that should meet the growth needs of the school district until 1970.

Q: How can school growth be predicted?

A: Projections indicate the school system will grow at the rate of 1,000 students a year. For the first time in the history of the district, this growth will be heaviest at the junior and senior high school levels. Projections are based on population growth charts for the whole county and the percentage of the community that will be of school age. The present total population in the area is 42,000. The 13,477 students in classrooms today include about 20 percent at the elementary level. In the next five years, the number entering junior and senior high school will greatly exceed the number graduated each year. By 1970 when the area population is expected to be 60,500, the school population is expected to be 30,570. The projections are based on studies made by the Detroit Metropolitan Area Regional Planning Commission; the Oakland County Coordinating, Zoning and Planning Committee; and city and township officials' projections.

Q: Why is so much more millage needed for operations?

A: The cost of operating the schools is increasing each year. Part of this, as in business, is due to the rising economy. Part of the rise reflects the student-teacher ratio which will increase each year from today's $470 per pupil to an expected cost in 1970 of $445 per pupil. Each year the growth of the school district requires 85.7 percent of the annual budget, these operational figures will climb along with the pupil population. In addition, teachers who move to higher seniority will move to higher salary levels. Heat, light, maintenance and other costs will cost more as buildings are added.

Q: Is it sound finance to lower the debt levy and spread the cost of paying off bond issues over a longer period?

A: School finance experts say it is because it gives people who will be using the schools in future years a share in paying for them.

Q: How does the State helping in this growth problem? A lot of the tax money the State collects is supposed to go to the schools.

A: The State helps in this growth problem? A lot of the tax money the State collects is supposed to go to the schools.

Q: I have no children in school. Why should I vote in a school election?

A: The quality of the schools in a community has a positive effect on property values. In the American tradition, you will be passing on opportunities for improved public school education, just as other generations provided you with this opportunity.

Q: Why are school taxes higher in Farmington than in some neighboring districts?

A: Farmington has a smaller commercial and industrial tax base than some neighboring communities. Home valuations alone, though they are climbing, cannot keep pace with the growth of the school district in the school district.

Q: Who can vote in the November 15 election?

A: Any registered voter who owns a property in the school district may vote on the three proposals.

JC's Teacher Award

"I try to treat students as individuals, with love and concern, and to help them meet their individual needs so that they may become useful citizens," Reinh concluded.

Jaycee Jim Alstrom, chairman of the Outstanding Young Educator Program, presented Reinh with his award certificate at a Jaycee banquet held Friday evening, November 5, at Roman Hall in Farmington.

A teacher at Cloverdale for five years, Reinh is married and active as a Sunday school teacher and baseball coach. He gave some of his reflections on his work in the teaching profession:

"Many phases of teaching give me much satisfaction including seeing children come to school smiling and happy, seeing children do their required work and then ask for more, seeing children come through on a test when you don't feel you have given them your all, watching a fifth grade boy suddenly enjoy reading, being associated with fellow educators every day, having a school millage vote pass, hearing compliments from parents, watching students doing things better than others. There are many self-satisfying things in teaching and just being part of the American educational system is satisfaction enough."

The Our Lady of Sorrows High School football team closed their 1965 campaign on a happy note Sunday by blanking Ann Arbor St. Thomas, 34 to 0, on the Farmington High School Clarence Cliff Field.

Senior backfield Cliff LaFond rolled for three touchdowns to lead the Lancers. Eleven, a signal caller Jim McGrath accounted for another score with an aerial to Bob Urban.

OLS halfback Jim Barnes carried over for the fourth touchdown. The Lancers scored one touchdown in the opening period, two in the second and had a commanding 21-0 lead at the half. In the third quarter, the Lancers scored the rest of the way to victory.

The OLS gridgers own a 6-2 overall season's record and a finished third in the Northwest Parochial League's Second Division.

Incorporation

approve incorporation as a city, township voters will also be asked to select a charter commission to draw up a proposed charter for voter consideration and approval if the incorporation proposal carries.

The THIRD proposition very possibly might be one of selecting a name for the proposed city. The name "Quakertown" was stipulated on the petitions for incorporation as filed but a decision by voters on other names than this might be called for, Hall said.

Plans are to appoint a township study committee to begin immediately in getting the views of the people with regard to the type of municipal government they feel would be best suited to meet both their present and future needs. Supervisor Hall remarked.

The charter commission would then have citizen direction in how to proceed in drawing up a charter under which to operate as a city, said Hall. Since the charter commission would have 90 days in which to prepare such a proposed city charter it would need this kind of advanced direction, Hall felt.

THE PUBLICATION of the proposed charter would then be required with ample time given for a review by the citizenry before a second election date.

One township would then return to the polls once more to either approve the charter for governmental operation by the newly incorporated city or reject it.

Supervisor Hall said that every effort possible will be made between now and the time the incorporation election is held to not only inform the township citizenry on all proposals and plans but also to seek out their opinions and feelings regarding the kind of government they really want.

One unidentified man questioned why it wouldn't be more practical for both the city and township to form one big city. It was explained that this might someday come to pass but that presently the city and township are far apart with regard to the kind of government that is wanted, zoning desired and on numerous other governmental matters.

SUPERVISOR HALL indicated that every effort possible would be made of try to set up the kind of government that township homeowners wanted. He expressed confidence that a charter setting a 7 mill or less per $1,000 tax limitation would be possible. He also indicated that he felt the township as a city would be able to provide better roads and traffic and safety controls as well as numerous other services even with a very limited tax levy.

Aldo Vaggonzi, Democratic party head, questioned why the township should be a city. He explained to him that this did not necessarily have to be the name for the proposed city and that the voters' views a name would very likely be asked.

Throughout the entire lively discussion, it was repeated again and again by both members that citizens' opinions and questions between now and the time of the incorporation election would be welcomed and answered.
