Detroit Mayor Speaks Here at Joint Meeting

(Editor's note: Excerpts of speech given by Detroit Mayor Jerome Cavanagh before a joint meeting of the Farmington and West Bloomfield Democratic Clubs.)

"Great unfinished business of America—education, slums, air and water pollution, have suddenly become great social problems. The great test of our society is going to be how well or how badly we deal with these problems."

"The War on Poverty programs introduced by President Johnson 'some of the greatest ever introduced in this country. These programs are different from the welfare programs of the past which didn't provide the incentive to break out of the poverty cycle."

"THE GREATEST beneficiaries of a successful effort to banish poverty would be the four-fifths of America who are not poor; who are paying the social costs of poverty through taxes. There is an indirect cost to the suburbs in the maintenance of slums in the cities."

"All of us have a great responsibility to participate in these programs. There is a moral obligation to provide opportunity for jobs, education, decent homes."

"The new relationship between the cities and federal government has come about because unrepresentative state legislatures have ignored the people in the metropolitan areas."

"THE 'CREATIVE federalism' of President Johnson's Great Society is one that puts primary responsibility in the hands of local government. A classic example of the use of poverty program which is locally controlled by local people."

"Until we realize the same common goals, the same goals as we do in the space program we're only going to be nibbling away at the problems. What good will it do to put a man on the moon by 1970 if we continue the slums, hard core unemployment, bad health conditions."

"(The speech was followed by a question and answer period during which Cavanagh pointed out that the suburbs and not the city of Detroit were the real winners when the city Legislature was a redistricted along equal population lines.)"

Study County School Budget

A liaison person from Oakland Schools to deal with Federal and state government became a possibility as designates from school boards in the county met last week to study the intermediate district budget.

Application forms for funds under the Elementary and Secondary Education Act "are tresssing, frightening even to look at," said Farmington Trustee Herbert Heil.

"The $22,900 ITEM in Oakland Schools $631,237 projected expenses for next year would cover the costs of salary, seeing of full-time person to assist county schools in their dealings with Lansing and Washington."

Other additions to Oakland Schools budget to a high powered computer in the Data Processing Center were shown in a $10,000 "get-ready" cost for teleprocessing.

THERE WAS NO budget provision to continue activities in behalf of gifted students. A study on programs for children of exceptional ability was completed this year and recommendations for further action are to be made at that time.

The budget presented was $22,333 over the $539,904 allocated for the instructional and administrative operations of Oakland Schools this year.

It would call for 18.5 cents of the $15 per thousand allowable tax on equalized property valuation.

tricts have pools at the high school level and any that have installed them at junior high levels have had to go ahead and add them to the high schools.

The consensus was that facilities, if wanted by the people, should be added to the two existing high schools and planned for in the third one which will be built on 12 Mile Road between Orchard Lake and Middlebelt Roads.

Administrators pointed out that the addition of auditoriums and pools would provide several additional teaching stations and be equivalent to adding classrooms. Some of the operational costs, therefore would be carried through regular school operations; and after-school use of the facilities would be self-supporting.

A DISCUSSION was held on whether to petition for four questions on the ballot—pools, auditoriums, both and operating millage. It was the consensus that too many questions would confuse to voters, and Richardson pointed out that the Jaycees wanted Board support in including pools and auditoriums together.

The decision was to inform the Jaycees that Board members would be willing to receive petitions asking them to place on the June ballot a request for a bond issue to build three swimming pools and three auditoriums plus a request for one mill to defray the additional operating costs.

Richardson indicated that the Jaycees and other interested citizens are ready to begin circulating petitions as soon as they can be printed.

Michigan Bell Expansion Set To Improve Local Services

Michigan Bell Telephone Company announced this week it will spend $1,137,000 in Farmington in 1966 to expand and improve its communications services.

The local outlay is part of Michigan Bell's 1966 construction program totaling a record $175 million, which surpasses last year's previous high by $40 million and is about the amount spent only three years ago.

WILLIAM M. DAY, Michigan Bell president, said in Detroit that much of the capital required to finance the program must come from investors willing to put their money into the telephone business rather than in other investment opportunities. He said the expanded 1966 program will require hundreds of additional employees to supplement the company's present force of some 22,400 men and women. It also will give substantial amounts of additional business to Michigan construction companies and suppliers.

"A program of this magnitude is necessary to keep pace with Michigan's economic boom," Day said. "This boom has led to service demands such as the company never before has experienced."

Day also attributed a good share of the surging demand to higher telephone usage stimulated by increasingly attractive prices. He cited the recent series of rate reductions and service improvements which "are making telephone service a constantly increasing bargain." As examples, he mentioned the declining costs of both interstate and intrastate calls.

"THESE ECONOMIES are prompting people in general to use their telephones more and more," Day said.

Hughes C. Bronaugh, Michigan Bell manager here, broke down Farmington's $1,137,000 outlay as follows:

$468,000 for outside plant facilities, $361,000 for telephone equipment in homes and offices, $295,000 for central office equipment, and about $15,000 for land and buildings.
