

Madonna Students Busy As Volunteer Tutors

Madonna College is participating in the Governor's Program of Student Volunteers in Higher Education. Programs already in action are tutoring and tutoring in mathematics. The planning stage is the student nurse volunteer program.

Nineteen students tutor at Clarencville junior high school with the ratio of two students per tutor. The students provide their own transportation, prepare their teaching materials and give of their time, at least an hour a week, with no financial return.

"Tutoring is a challenge. It gives me a feeling of satisfaction. I feel that I have accomplished something no matter how insignificant it may seem," says Martha Wolfe who tutors at Clarencville.

Some 44 students teach extension classes at St. Aidon, St. Christine, St. Dunstan, St. Valentine, St. Edith, St. Hilary, and St. Robert Bellarmine parishes and at the Wayne County Training home.

"I love it!" is the consensus of students involved in the program.

"Every day, if I could get it into my schedule, because I feel the students need this interest and instruction," says Christine Fox, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Fox, 1643 S. Levan, who teaches some third graders at St. Edith's parish.

Student Volunteers from 40 colleges and universities of Michigan will meet on March 4 and 5 at Central Michigan University in Mt. Pleasant at the third annual Governor's Conference.

"The purpose is to facilitate the exchange of ideas between various colleges and to coordinate the programs of the colleges."

Governor George Romney will open the conference with an address to the students and counselors. A workshop and roundtable discussion will follow. The program includes a study program, program inter-relationship, program development and recruitment of volunteers.

Two Madonna College students, Laura Champagne, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leo Champagne of 33063 Ferch, Livonia, and Barbara Lemanski, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Lemanski, 8958 Marian Crest, Redford, will be co-chairmen of workshop sessions.

LIT Offers To Aid 'B' Students

As far as Lawrence Institute of Technology is concerned, financial need is not a requirement for high school graduates to be eligible for one of the 25 LIT scholarships available, according to Dr. Wayne H. Bull, president.

"We are making our offer to students who are either better—with or without financial need," said Dr. Bull.

"To elicit a good student from applying for one of our own scholarships because he or his family is self-insufficient is not our objective. We want to foster academic excellence at the college."

Each of the 25 LIT scholarships is a year's tuition and registration fees in the day college, is valued at $600 and is renewable at the discretion of the governing committee. High school students should apply now for scholarships beginning in the fall.

Each of the LIT has other groups of scholarships offered by firms and individuals which continue to specify financial need as a requirement. A leaflet describing LIT scholarships and student aid is available free of charge at the college, 1000 West Ten Mile, Southfield, 48075.

Franklin High Plans 'Retail Careers' Week

This is Careers in Retailing Week. Through a series of programs, Franklin High School students are becoming acquainted with the distributive education program, a program developed to spur students' interest in a career in business. In charge of the Franklin co-program are Ida Falk and Robert Rice.

Monday, Charles F. Russ, District Personnel Manager for Montgomery Wards and Chairman of the careers in retailing committee spoke to students about opportunities in business. Tuesday, the Sears Foundation sponsored a film, "The Story of Distributive Education." Today Westland invited co-op students and guests to learn more about the work of a co-op student.

Thursday, Franklin is sponsoring a symposium on distributive education. Members of the panel are co-op students Julie Borawski, Camille Goralczyk, Renee Dumont, Doreen Borden, Natalie Harry, Michele Bushaw, Linda Cox, and Connie Hunt.

Friday, all business education students will react to the possibilities of entering the cooperative education program.

Farmington High Club Enjoys French Cooking

By MADGE HILDEBRANDT

Twenty-five members of the Farmington Senior High French Club partook of French cuisine at the Pontchartrain restaurant Feb. 28.

This was the second year the students visited the exotic restaurant and tested their language fluency on the French-speaking waiters.

The group plans to attend the George Bernard Shaw play, "Saint Joan" at the State University Hillberry Classic Theater on March 22.

FHS made a good showing in the Scholastic Awards Competition. Recognized in the contest were Cathy Hina, a sophomore, juniors Gina Parsons and Cindy Wayne, and seniors Alf Gregory, Bob Murphy, and Penny Trikes.

Mike Gregory submitted a portfolio of his work as did 54 other seniors from the Detroit area. His was one of the 100 selected, and it will be sent to the national art show in New York for a scholarship consideration.

The eight FHS art classes, which include 170 students, visited the Scholastic art show at Downtown Crowley's last week.

Garden City West Teachers Perform

By KAREN SLEBOHNIK

On Monday, March 7 at 8 p.m. the Garden City West Senior High Student Government will present a Donkey basketball game in the West gym. It will feature teachers versus students.

The teachers' team will consist of: Mr. Dempsey, Mr. Harbush, Mr. Pinnell, Mr. Burkholder, Mr. Babler and Mr. Kroupa.

Participating for the students are: Ford Simpson, Bo Ardell, Dale Hardin, Bob Gamache, Mickey Martin, Ken Broome and Terry Thompson.

As an added attraction, six cheerleaders will be back from the Homecoming pep assembly. They are: Cathy Hivan, Roberta Stevens, Joan Kosmalki, Michelle Ader, Josefina Ostervik and Dana Shannon.

During halftime ceremonies one of the cheerleaders will be chosen "Miss Jackass of 1966" and she will reign over the remaining ceremonies.

Cheering for the teachers will be: Muskie Mike Murdoch, Jessabelle Jones, Dizzy Dame Deyette and many more.

On the afternoon of the game, there will be a pep assembly. This is to introduce the cheerleaders and the two teams in full uniform.

Cheerleaders from West sponsored a clinic for all the cheerleaders in the Detroit area. The purpose was to exchange cheers and ideas. Contests were held and the West cheerleaders took second place in open competition.

Their skit was about Franklin and Bobbin. Members of the cheerleaders are: Cathy Hivan, Roberta Stevens, Joan Kosmalki, Michelle Ader, Josefina Ostervik, Storch and Jacki Shaft.
