Garden Therapy Group Tries Variety of Ideas

Many and varied were the projects when Hill and Dale Therapy Group had its Open Planning Day. Classes in Gill School made tissue paper collages in the form of a vase of flowers. Another class made lifelike birds sitting in a nest. The birds were constructed of milkweed pods, a few feathers, pieces of candy and cloves for the eye.

Over at Duncel School, one class made floral paperweights out of pretty jars, artificial flowers, water, mothballs and felt material for a base, while another class made hanging potholders out of paper plates, red yarn and colorful pictures of flowers cut out of seed catalogs.

Handicapped tots in Lake-shire School started sweet potatoes growing in ceramic vases which were in the form of different animals. Each child's name was punched out of a letter gun and glued to a piece of the child's hearing equipment, and there was a sweet treat for one and all.

One other class shared a sweet treat after they created a gumdrop tree out of a branch held in place with plaster of pearls.
