Court Dismisses Tullis Suit in PCHA Squabble

Attorney General Frank Kelley's civil suit against William Tullis of Garden City was dismissed in Ingham County Circuit Court after Tullis agreed to sign a consent agreement stating he would participate in neither a private corporation assuming control of the Peoples Community Hospital Authority or in a transfer of assets of the PCHA.

Tullis was one of four parties named in a civil suit by Kelley to prevent transfer of the PCHA to a private, non-profit corporation. The others were Carl McNamara, former board chairman, Gordon Gable, former vice chairman and Kenneth Gremore, former executive director.

Tullis, one of Garden City's representatives on the PCHA, is secretary of the Hospital Authority's Board of Directors. He was chairman of the public relations and education committee before being named secretary after Gremore was dismissed for misuse of funds. He is employed with Bar-roughs Corporation in Plymouth.

Representing Tullis at the hearing before Circuit Judge Marvin Solomon was Earl Demel of Plymouth. Assisting Attorney General Milton Firestone, former Livonia City Assistant Attorney, represented the state. McNamara and Gable were also present along with PCHA attorney B. Ward Smith of Cozard, Shagel & Smith.

The civil suit against Tullis was dismissed upon the motion of Firestone after Demel also would sign the consent agreement. The dismissal motion was read by Firestone after a 15 minute conference in the Judge's chamber attended by Firestone, Demel, Gable, Smith and Judge Solomon.

Firestone told The Observer the dismissal was satisfactory because all the Attorney General wanted was to prevent the Authority being transferred to a corporation and a consent agreement signed by Tullis meets that condition as far as Tullis is concerned.

Solomon granted Demel 30 days to draw up the consent agreement for Tullis to sign. The 30 days were granted so Demel could receive a copy of transcripts of the hearing before drawing up the agreement.

Conceivably, the entire civil suit initiated by Kelley could be dismissed if Gremore, McNamara and Gable also signed a similar consent order agreement.

Meanwhile, Henry Seitz has returned to his post as Wayne County Civil Service Director after being found innocent in Wayne County Common Pleas Court of spending PCHA funds for private purposes.

Seitz took a leave of absence from his County post after being named by Kelley in his sweeping indictment against the PCHA. At its last meeting, the Wayne County Board of Supervisors reinstated Seitz with back pay. Seitz lives in Belleville and is a member-at-large of the PCHA Board of Directors.

Gremore and former PCHA treasurer, Frank Rodwell will appear in Grosse Pointe Municipal Court tomorrow (Thursday) for an examination on charges of "unlawful use and allowing the unlawful use of public funds (PCH) for purposes not in accordance with the law."

The two stood mute at an arraignment and bond was set at $10,000 by Grosse Pointe Municipal Judge Douglas Patterson.

80 HOURS IN and only until Monday night at 8 p.m. to go. That's what the blackboard said at Schoolcraft College Monday where members of the Circle K Club were electing their way to a national endorsement race. The 15 members of the campus group started the campaign Friday at noon and have been going around the clock since. They use the portable chalk to sleep in during the night while the electing is done while poring over books. That's what Bob Taylor (left) of Plymouth and Lynn Allen, also of Plymouth are doing as they brave the weather and still crack their books.

In a related event, the State Court of Appeals turned down an appeal made by Nankin Justice of the Peace Michael Bradley stating that the Governor cannot remove him from office except by the concurrent action of the Legislature.

Bradley and Nankin Justice George Perry were both charged with misconduct in office by Piggins who petitioned the Governor to remove them. They both are presently running for Municipal Judge in an incorporation election in Nankin Township on April 25 to bring cityhood to Nankin.

Buback has denied the charges made by Piggins and says he will not take a leave of absence from his duties as sheriff. Meanwhile, the "Big Five" (deputies who made the first disclosures in the ticket-fixing scandal) are campaigning for the selection of Patrolman Eli C. Janisse Jr. as a replacement for Buback.

Janisse, a deputy for 30 years, is doing a little campaigning himself, urging a reform program involving the creation of a metropolitan police agency. The Big Five claim that to discuss additional police politicians have been busy trying ing to pick a new sheriff ever since Piggins began his ticket-fixing investigation.

While Janisse is talking of establishing a metropolitan police agency, Nankin Township which is presently served by the Sheriff's Patrol is talking about establishing its own police force. The Township Board is expected to discuss additional police protection at Monday's meeting.

Blinded By Sun, Youth Strikes Bus

Blinded by the brilliant sunlight Monday morning, Tim Byrnes, 18, of 30743 Grand River, Farmington, is in St. Mary Hospital in Livonia from injuries suffered when his car clipped the left rear end of a parked DSR bus, rolled over and caught on fire.

Livonia Police reports show Byrnes was driving south on Grand River and made a left turn onto Eight Mile Road where he ran into the bus. The reports show he told police he never saw the bus and even on the emergency table at the hospital, he had no idea of what he had struck, according to police.

Byrnes was taken to the hospital in serious condition.

The bus, operated by Arthur Tate, Jr., of 3408 Edison, Detroit, was only slightly damaged. Tate told investigating officers he had pulled up behind another bus and hadn't yet opened the door for passengers.
