SO—

It's another chair and ottoman and French at that. The cover is quilted, the finish is walnut and they are comfortable. Of course, we have other chairs and ottomans in other styles. And downy and finish. They are comfortable too. We also have the carpet that goes beneath them, the tables that go to bed them and the lamps that go on the tables. We even have ash trays. We think we have what you want for your house.

Sincerely,
Lillian Interiors Designers

Our Queen of Hearts Expresses "A New Approach"

By FAITH GILLESPIE
Editor's Note: This column of our Faith's is more than a cooking guide. To us it expresses her own warm-hearted, cheerful philosophy of life. We think this column is something rather special—and here you will enjoy it. J. W. The Queen of Hearts is really who, and every other woman who labors with love in her kitchen.

Oh, it's true that the whole undertaking of somehow providing a husband and/or children with three (at least) appetizing and nutritious meals every day and every day and every day can seem pretty dismal some days. There we stand, mind blank, at that packaged meat counter in the supermarket on a bleak afternoon, sometimes wondering what in the world we have been feeding our family for the last two or eight or 13 years.

It is a rare one of us who can muster up the charity to lavish great pains on a spectacular dinner after our King of Hearts has charged in roaring why on earth didn't you get those bikes (and trikes and wagons and doll buggies and sleds) out of the driveway? (Because I've been in here slaving, that's why!) I am not suggesting that you rush out to the kitchen and whip up seven dozen cookies when the children have been whining and fighting and coming down with chicken pox. Someone else has figured that out: you give them some broth without any bread and whip them all soundly and put them to bed, thank you Mother Goose. What I have in mind could be called a New Approach, which sometimes does a woman almost as much good as a new hat, add a pinch of love to each recipe.

some houses, not mine), and they freeze well. If you don't have a freezer, surely you have a neighbor whose winter has been as taxing as yours, who would be tickled to see you, especially if you bring goodies. The theory is that the loving care spent in the kitchen spreads through the rest of the house. It ought to last at least as long as the wonderful aroma of the baking... maybe even as long as the batch of cookies. Who can possibly roar or fight or whine with a Double Cross clutched in each fist? Could even be good for chicken pox!
