Players In Profile

BY KAYE BRITTON

Marcia Martin is the charming subject of this week's profile. If the name seems familiar, it may be because Marcia caused you to double-check the biography in the program of "Come Blow Your Horn" which opened the season last year. Her characterization of Mrs. Baker, the Jewish mother, was priceless and is still talked about by all who saw it.

Marcia and her husband, Burke, live in Farmington with their two sons—Richard, 17, and

Bruce, 14. While Burke is busy keeping the Bloomfield Hills gentility presentable at the Devon Hills Barber Shop, Marcia is tearing down the Freeway to Wayne State University. She is attending college full-time, hoping for a B.A. in Psychology in the not too distant future. Richard is a senior at North Farmington High and Bruce attends East Junior High. Both of them are a couple of "hams" Marcia says. Richard stage, and Marcia's excellent work reflects her love for acting. She has played four major roles for the Players: The Southern Belle in "Lo and Be-hold," Joanna in "Present Laughter," Kretion in "Visit To A Small Planet," and Mrs. Baker in "Come Blow Your Horn." She is now hard at work on her fifth—the harassed wife Ruth, in "Blithe Spirit." Marcia reveals that her favorite part is Kretion in "Visit To A Small Planet." It is a part that was originally played by a man, Cyril Ritchard to be exact, and it was a challenging part to play.

SHE HAS—WORKED behind the scenes at the Players too, as all who belong must do at times. She has recently been a member of the Playreading and Casting Committee. Trinity Church in Farmington has been a strong interest in Marcia's busy life, and she has taught a young people's Fellowship Class until this year.

Be sure to see "Blithe Spirit" at the Players Barn, on April 29, 30, May 1, 6, 7, 13 and 14 and enjoy another of this talented actress' fine portrayals. Tickets may be reserved by calling Harry and Fran Kerzner at GR. 4-7367.

was in the Players production of "The Great Sebastians." MARCIA WAS BORN in Cleveland, Ohio on January 25, didn't stay too long in that area. She was two years old when her father, who is an engineer, accepted a position in Detroit and she and her parents moved to Winans Lake just outside of Ann Arbor.

Her earliest acting interest, Marcia remembers, was at the age of four when she studied Elocution. Her excellent diction and projection show the results of this early training. Marcia graduated from University High School in Ann Arbor and continued her education for one year longer at Highland Park Junior College. Dramatics remained a strong interest through her school years and Marcia remembers many a performance of plays such as "Come Rain or Come Shine."

MARCIA ALSO HAS appeared with the Detroit Civic Players and, of course, the Farmington Players. She joined the Players in 1956 and when asked why she joined, she says simply, "I love to act." That sounds like a harmless enough phrase; but when said, it means that not too many things are more important than being up on that

Stone Creek Chatter

PAT SZYMANSKI 476-8236

If anyone happens to be caught in a cross current between the Kellys and the Szymanskis on Brookplace Ct., don't get scared. It's not an air raid, or a haunted house enthusiast or an accident. It's simply that one member from each residence (I wonder who they are?) has joined the Detroit Opera Company and are busy practicing for the forthcoming June performance. While the girls are out singing, the male half of the Szymanskis is busy dancing with a Russian folk and Cossack dance group in Dearborn.

AFTER SINGING rehearsal, wife Pat joins the dancers and the kiddies who are anxious to join the junior members of the group. On April 24 the combined singing and dancing efforts will culminate in a concert at the Ukrainian Hall. Seems the flu bug has been biting without mercy during the last few weeks. Having come down with it myself I can vouch that the best remedy is a shot from the doctor—and plenty of rest. So take care! At the next regular meeting of the Homeowners' Association the guest speaker will be Mr. Aldo Vagnorzi who will give us his views on the subject of incorporation, so please try to attend with it myself I can vouch
