JUDGE BEER CONFERS with the General Chairman during last year's Independence Day festivities in Kendallwood I. The candle blowers are Yankee Doodle Dandies (those born on the Fourth of July) who had just been presented with a birthday cake by Ray Murphy who has agreed to be this year's Parade Marshall. To Judge Beer's right is his secret, Roy Rystrand, who had introduced himself to the Judge earlier that day as "your baby sitter."

Judge To Set Theme For K-1

The Honorable William J. Beer, Oakland County Circuit Court Judge, will deliver the Fourth of July oration at the holiday of fun, festivities, feasting and fireworks to be held in Kendallwood I, subdivision, it was announced on Friday.
 The Judge will speak this year on the contributions to American independence of Sam Adams, the Committees of Correspondence and the events at Boston. His topic is the special "theme" this year in Kendallwood I. During the month of June the Farmington District Library will maintain a display section of books on this special theme.

It was also announced that Kendallwood I's 1966 celebration of the Fourth will involve many additional features and events for teens and adults. It is not being named an Old-Fashioned Fourth like last year, because plans are in process to make the holiday much bigger and more festive than just about any old-fashioned Fourth. It will be a celebration appropriate to the 190th anniversary of the adoption of the Declaration of Independence, it was stated, and about four times as much fun as last year.

JUDGE BEER, WHO was Kendallwood I's Fourth of July orator in 1965 and held the rapt attention of all age groups in speaking about Ben Franklin, will again limit his talk to ten minutes.
