Nurse Wins $115 For Suggestion

Alta Bolton, of Farmington, is a winner of $115 for a suggestion submitted to the State Department of Civil Service in a program run for state employees for suggestions which will improve service to the public or save money in government operation.

An attendant nurse at the Plymouth State Home and Training School, her suggestion was for use of a sheet saver for certain purposes. The first year net tangible savings were estimated at $1,150.

BETTY STREMICH, assistant manager of Hillside Inn, 41661 Plymouth Road, Plymouth, and Robert J. Stremich, the owner, get in the groove for the roast African lion dinner which will be one of the entrees the Inn will serve New Year's Eve. Cooked in wine sauce, the imported lion meat is light in color, similar to veal and is said to be delicious to eat.

Tired of New Year's Ham? 'Special' Try Hillside's Roast Lion Children Celebrate

The Hillside Inn is a beautiful colonial restaurant in Plymouth. In 1934, Jacob Stremich started the Hillside Inn, and it has grown from a seating capacity of 38 to its present 350. The Hillside is still owned by the Stremich family, and the tradition of fine food has been passed from one generation to the next.

Innovation and originality are two of the bywords of this restaurant. Many unique features are now a part of the Hillside. For example, the parking lot is cleverly lighted with antique gas street lights which were collected from salvage yards all over the country.

If you are tired of the same old baked ham or roast turkey for your holiday meals, why not try some nice roast African lion? The Hillside Inn has 710 pounds (two male lions) which will be prepared for ushers in the New Year. Last year one female lion (250 pounds) was not enough to satisfy the Gourmands' appetites that flocked into Hillside. The entire lion, cut into steaks, chops, and roasts was devoured leaving only the skin, which has since been tanned and made into a rug.

The lions had to be inspected by the Federal Government, and graded, and a wild game permit had to be obtained from the state before serving.

These beautiful animals were brought to the United States from Tanganyika, Africa, two years ago, and were established in Custer State Park in South Dakota. When the state officials "culled their pride" the two males were weeded out.

Lion is about the most expensive meat you can buy, costing over $2.70 per pound. The complete dinner at Hillside will feature a half-pound serving of lion for $5.50 and will include everything from soup to dessert.

Lion is not the only unusual entree which has found its way into the stomachs of the Hillside patrons. Buffalo from Canada, Rein Deer from Norway, Black Bear, Moose, Elk, Whale Steak and Iceland Lamb have all been featured at the colonial restaurant.

At present, the Hillside Inn is attempting to obtain a 1,000 pound live hippopotamus for its patrons to admire before and after its slaughter. Zebra and Giraffe are also on the way.

Of course, not all Hillside Inn customers are daring enough to sample these unusual dishes, and for those more regimented tastes, the restaurant features a fine selection of steaks, chops, and seafood items.

FHS Band Students Visit Workshop

Five members of the Farmington Senior High Concert Band attended the First annual Wind Instrument Honors Day at University of Michigan Saturday, December 3.

The musical activities of the day were centered around clinics and workshops which answered many of the questions from the participating musicians.

Senior Sue Dever, and juniors Lynn Dickinson, Bob Harrison, Patricia Babcock, and Brian Wanless are the students who attended. Mr. Robert Zimmerman, band director, accompanied them.

The educational and informative clinics for the various instruments were presented by instructors from the staff of the University of Michigan School of Music.

ONE SOLITARY LIFE

He was born in an obscure village, the child of a peasant woman.

He grew up in still another village, where he worked in a carpenter shop until he was thirty...

Then for three years he was an itinerant preacher. He never wrote a book. He never held an office. He never had a family or owned a house. He didn't go to college. He never visited a big city. He never traveled two hundred miles from the place where he was born. He did none of the things one usually associates with greatness. He had no credentials but himself. He was only thirty-three when the tide of public opinion turned against him. His friends ran away. He was turned over to his enemies and went through the mockery of a trial. He was nailed to a cross between two thieves. While he was dying, his executioners gambled for his clothing, the only property he had on earth. When he was dead, he was laid in a borrowed grave through the pity of a friend. Nineteen centuries have come and gone, and today he is the central figure of the human race and the leader of mankind's progress. All the armies that ever marched, all the navies that ever sailed, all the parliaments that ever sat, all the kings that ever reigned, put together, have not affected the life of man on this earth as much as that ONE SOLITARY LIFE.

To wish you all the joys of Christmas and happiness for the New Year.
