

Unveil Plans For 'Ecumenical University'

Plans for an "Ecumenical University" were unveiled Thursday, Oct. 20 by the Very Rev. Malcolm Carron, S.J., in his inaugural address at Ford Auditorium.

The new president of the University of Detroit, speaking to more than 3,000 at inaugural ceremonies, observed that "If the University of Detroit is to live up to its ideal of Christianizing the human intellect, and if it is to meet the needs of urban society, it must do so in the spirit of openness, community and renewal that Vatican II has inspired."

"Ecumenism is not an easy undertaking," he warned. "Sometimes it will seem a little confused when viewed from the outside. When fostered in an atmosphere of freedom, the dialogue can become loud and intense."

"There may be those who will think the University has drifted from its moorings. But do not be dismayed. The Church of the Second Vatican Council, and therefore the University, encourages and inspired by it."

stands forth as a sign of that brotherhood which not only allows dialogue but gives it strength and vigor.

"Where the winds of change blow, the waters are sure to be turbulent, at least on the surface."

Fr. Carron's listeners included Governor George Romney, Mayor Jerome P. Cavanagh, the Most Rev. Joseph M. Breitenbeck, auxiliary bishop of the Catholic Archdiocese of Detroit, William R. Kelly, Wayne State University president; Ray R. Eppert, Burroughs board chairman; and U. of D. faculty students, and alumni representatives. They delivered short, snappy remarks from the speakers' podium.

Delegates represented more than 450 colleges and universities throughout the nation, and more than 200 learned societies. Among the delegates were more than 50 presidents, and there were representatives of most religious faiths in Detroit.

Mt. Hope 'Harvest Fair' To Be Held November 4

A festive day is planned for Friday, Nov. 4, when Mt. Hope Congregational Church, 30330 Schoolcraft, Livonia, has its Harvest Fair in its new chapel. The public is invited to attend from 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. The church is two blocks west of Middlebelt. Admission and parking is free.

The chairman of the Fair, Mrs. Forrest MacQueen and her co-chairman, Mrs. Arthur Seale, have titled the "Christmas Carousal" for the theme of the Fair. Contests for the 700 will be a large beach umbrella decorated in white and net and the booths will be in corresponding color and material.

The five circles have their own specialties:

- Joanna Circle, candy and baked goods;
- Priscilla Circle, baby dresses, aprons, card table covers and place mats;
- Miriam Circle, Christmas

tablecloths, card table covers, baby sweaters, bib socks, dusters and shirts; decorative wall plaques and fruit cakes;

Deborah Circle, net Christmas trees and tablecloths, clown pajama bags, decorated soap, flowered hand mirrors, candles, Christmas card baskets and an assortment of Christmas decorations for the home and the tree; and Rebekah Circle, felt pictures for a child's room, decorative soap and pajama bags. Some of the Church School pupils will have pot holders, pin cushions and knit goods.

There will be games for children. Lunch will be served from 11:30 a.m. to 1 p.m. and dinner, 5 to 7 p.m.

Further information may be had from the President of the Women's Fellowship, Mrs. Carl Ufferman, 281-1931 or the Church Office, 425-7280.

Lutheran Manifesto To Be Presented Oct. 30

A 16-point "manifesto" to be read Sunday, Oct. 30, at all congregations of the Lutheran Church in America, will begin a period of self-examination and renewal in the denomination's 217 congregations. Among the churches in the local area that will be participating will be Antioch Church, Farmington; Incarnation, Farmington; Holy Cross and Christ the King, Livonia.

The Rev. Carl F. Kaitzeider, pastor of the Antioch Congregation, said the manifesto consists of a "check list" of characteristics that a congregation alert to modern times must consider. The document will be read from the pulpit on Reformation Sunday and will provide the basis for study and discussions with the help of materials being prepared by the LCA Executive Council. Pastor Kaitzeider said.

He said the LCA approved the manifesto and accompanying two-year study at its 1964 convention in Kansas City last June. At the 1964 convention, the LCA became concerned that some of its congregations may have lost touch with modern changes in private and community life, and it ordered a study of the nature and mission of the congregation.

The Manifesto is the result of a study of the nature and mission of the congregation.

Peel Decals

To remove a decal from furniture, soak an ink blotter in water. Press to furniture surface over the decal. Allow to dry thoroughly, then peel off both blotter and decal.
